SUMMARY OF MEETING: This meeting discussed issues relating to the use of lead in metal jewelry. Topics included the reasons for using lead or other metals, common jewelry manufacturing processes, quality control practices, and some aspects of buying and merchandizing jewelry products for different market segments. The trade association described steps the industry has taken to reduce the use of lead. In particular, industry participants discussed some of the issues and concerns they raised during the development of the California legislation that regulates the use of lead in jewelry products for children aged 6 years and under and in other jewelry products.
