Ho When Of your concern!

Nothing here reading about Made in USA. Seems to me it really doesn't make that much difference any more.

So take a walk down the way in any store in the good old USA. Pick a any item. If you find (1%) made in USA then let me tell you. You are walking on something.

Years ago it used to be Japan then Taiwan, Benkei, now the big cheap country is China. Cheap sold and the bottom line is the name of the game. The American Toy Buyer saw us a long time ago. Most people can afford to worry about where a product is made because the money is not there for the little guy.

The middle management is trying to stay ahead as he definitely has the vote his money and his clout. Where a product is made has taken a great deal survived.

The ones on top make and care. They had plenty of money as he bought a product had a good name like Nike, Cadak, Oldsmar, B.M.W., MERCEDES and so on set the middle man worry about the product is made.

Myself I think where a product is made 100% in the USA it should be made in China
