CHANGING COMPENSATION COSTS IN THE DALLAS METROPOLITAN AREA: JUNE 2009

Total compensation costs for private industry workers increased 2.1 percent in the Dallas-Fort Worth, Texas metropolitan area for the year ended in June 2009, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor. Regional Commissioner Stanley W. Suchman noted that one year ago, Dallas-Fort Worth experienced an annual gain of 2.7 percent in total compensation costs. Locally, wages and salaries, the largest component of total compensation costs, advanced at a 3.0-percent pace for the 12-month period ended June 2009. Nationwide, total compensation costs rose 1.5 percent and wages and salaries, 1.6 percent over the same period. (See chart A and table 1.)

Chart A. Twelve-month percent changes in the Employment Cost Index for total compensation and for wages and salaries, private industry workers, United States and the Dallas area, not seasonally adjusted, June 2007 to June 2009

The "Employment Cost Index for the Regions" news releases have been discontinued. However, the estimates that appeared in those releases are available in table 6 (www.bls.gov/news.release/eci.t06.htm) and table 10 (www.bls.gov/news.release/eci.t10.htm) of the "Employment Cost Index" news release issued by the BLS National Office. Historical estimates can be retrieved at www.bls.gov/ncs/ect/regionaleci.htm.

Dallas is 1 of 14 metropolitan areas in the United States, and 1 of 5 areas in the South region of the country, for which local compensation cost data are available. Among these 14 largest areas, Boston experienced the highest percent change in both total compensation costs and wages and salaries from June 2008 to June 2009. Over-the-year growth in total compensation costs ranged from 3.5 percent in Boston to 0.4 percent in both Minneapolis and Phoenix in June 2009; for wages and salaries, annual advances ranged from 3.6 percent in Boston to 0.2 percent in Chicago. (See chart B.)

The annual increase in total compensation costs in Dallas-Fort Worth in June 2009, at 2.1 percent, compared to gains ranging from 1.9 to 1.2 percent in the four other metropolitan areas in the South (Atlanta, Houston, Miami and Washington). Dallas-Fort Worth's 3.0-percent gain in wages and salaries over this 12-month period compared to advances ranging from 2.5 to 1.3 percent in the four other southern localities. (See table 2.)

Locality compensation costs are part of the national Employment Cost Index (ECI), which measures quarterly changes in total compensation costs, including wages, salaries, and employer costs for employee benefits. In addition to the 14 local estimates provided in this release, ECI data for the nation, 4 geographical regions, and 9 geographical divisions are available. (Geographical definitions for the metropolitan areas mentioned in this release are included in the Technical Note.)

In addition to the geographic data, a comprehensive national report is available that provides data by industry, occupational group, and union status, as well as for both private and state and local government employees. The report on the Employment Cost Index and further technical information may be obtained from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Southwest Regional Office by calling 972-850-4800. The report is also available on the Internet at www.bls.gov/news.release/eci.toc.htm. Current and historical information from other Bureau programs may be accessed via our regional homepage at www.bls.gov/ro6/. The ECI for September 2009 will be released on Friday, October 30, 2009 at 8:30 a.m. (ET). Information from the Employment Cost Index program is available to sensory impaired individuals upon request. Voice phone: 202-691-5200, Federal Relay Services: 1-800-877-8339.

Technical Note

The Employment Cost Index (ECI) is a measure of the change in the cost of labor, free from the influence of employment shifts among occupations and industries. The total compensation series includes changes in wages and salaries and employer costs for employee benefits.

Wages and salaries are defined as straight-time average hourly earnings or, for workers not paid on an hourly basis, straight-time earnings divided by the corresponding hours. Straight-time wage and salary rates are total earnings before payroll deductions, excluding premium pay for overtime, work on weekends and holidays, and shift differentials. Production bonuses, incentive earnings, commission payments, and cost-of-living adjustments are included in straight-time earnings, whereas nonproduction bonuses (such as Christmas or year-end bonuses) are excluded. Also excluded are such items as payments-in-kind, free room and board, and tips.

Selection of areas

Based on available resources and the existing ECI sample, it was determined that estimates would be published for 14 metropolitan areas. Since the ECI sample sizes by area are directly related to area employment, the areas with the largest private industry employment as of the year 2000 were selected. For each of these areas, 12-month percent changes and associated standard areas were computed for the periods since December 2006.
