

AT UNT, I LEARNED HOW TO BUILD A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS STEP BY STEP.

—NORM MILLER ('62),
chairman of Interstate Battery System of America, UNT alumnus

Norm Miller believed in the American dream. And he shaped the future of a billion-dollar privately held corporation.

Starting as a traveling salesman and working his way through the ranks, he helped build Interstate Batteries into the No. 1 replacement brand battery in North America. Today, he leads a company known for top quality, innovation and reliability.

Miller credits the University of North Texas with teaching him an enlightened systematic approach to building a successful business. And he encourages the next generation of business leaders to be prepared to do any and every job and remain committed to the highest quality and value.
