

Graduate Student Travel Grants

New information for FY20

Travel Grant Criteria

Toulouse Graduate School (TGS) offers to graduate students a limited number of competitive travel grants to support the costs of travel to professional meetings that are relevant to their degree.

To be eligible, graduate students:

- Must be in good academic standing
- Must be presenting research or a creative activity which they have authored/co-authored. It must have been peer reviewed and accepted for presentation.
- Must have an approved degree plan on file in the Graduate School.
- Must have a $100-$500 matching travel grant already secured from the applicant's department, college, or other appropriate source. These funds are matched on a 1:1 basis.
- Must attend at least three TGS Professional Development Graduate Workshops per academic year either in person or live online stream.
- Must complete Responsible Conduct of Research \(RCR\) training within three years of applying for the grant.

New criteria to be made aware

- Students must turn in receipts within two weeks of the scheduled end of the conference.
- Applications for travel for the current time period will be given more weight (e.g. October award period will favor funding travel in September, October or November)
- Entire award will be processed through your college or department.
- TGS requirements must be completed before the end of the application period to be considered for the award
- Any unfunded application will not roll to the next award period
- If a student can't afford to cover travel expenses up front, Student Money Management Center may be able to help. Go to studentaffairs.unt.edu/student-money-management-center for emergency assistance eligibility.
