The FBI - Law Enforcement Executive Development Association, and the Erie County Law Enforcement Training Academy are pleased to announce an innovative three and a half day program - Executive Survival: Policing in the 21st Century© being held in Williamsville, New York.

This program is designed for senior law enforcement executives focusing on the emerging challenges facing our profession. This highly interactive program follows the FBI -LEEDA “Cops Teaching Cops” model of professional development. The seminar uses a wide range of source material and calls upon the participant’s professional experience to facilitate individual development and enrich the learning environment. The course first looks inward to identify the forces of change and emerging trends within the law enforcement community, such as the challenges of merging the perspectives of Traditionalist, Baby Boom, Generation X and Millennial employees and presents leadership strategies to manage and adapt to the future conditions. The program also looks into the future to forecast several emerging global “Megatrends” that are expected to shape conditions for the next few decades; discuss how those trends will affect the global law enforcement community and how police executives can influence and shape future conditions.

The following is a tentative agenda for Executive Survival:
