Oregon Real Estate Agency has new Regulation Manager

Salem, Oregon, June 10, 2008 – Real Estate Commissioner Gene Bentley announced today the selection of Selina Barnes as Regulation Division Manager of the Oregon Real Estate Agency.

The six-year veteran of the agency will oversee 11 employees, including the agency's investigators that look into complaints against real estate brokers and property managers.

Barnes, 44, joined the agency in December 2002 as an investigator. She was promoted to manager of the Licensing Division in December 2004.

Barnes earned an A.A degree in Criminal Justice from Clackamas Community College. She served over eight years with the Salem Police Department, including four years as a detective conducting complex, multi-jurisdictional investigations.

Barnes also brings additional public sector experience, previously managing the Regional Investigator Program for the Construction Contractors Board.

The Oregon Real Estate Agency is headquartered in Salem. This state agency licenses and regulates over 26,000 real estate brokers, property managers, and escrow agents in Oregon. The agency is funded through fees.
