On behalf of the Hawaii Department of Health and U.S. EPA, I would like to invite you to Hawaii Brownfields Forum #3. This year, we have been working with the Center for Creative Land Recycling, a national organization specializing in Brownfields training, to develop a very full and informative program for the day. This Forum is designed for all those who are involved with developing contaminated properties...specifically those purchasing contaminated property, mitigating risks, negotiating environmental insurance, and performing site investigations

The day will be divided into a morning and afternoon session. You may attend one, or the other, or both. The morning session will focus on how key stakeholders view and manage risks, and specifically how to use environmental insurance. Our panel of experts will include senior executives representing lenders, developers, landowners, and regulators. The afternoon session will focus on performing thorough and cost effective site investigations, what you should expect from your environmental consultant, and how to work effectively with state regulators. Presenters will include experienced environmental consultants who perform site investigations and key staff who review site investigation reports for the Department of Health. Attendees will also have the opportunity to network with colleagues, industry experts and DOH staff at breakfast and during breaks.

We look forward to seeing you!
