8:00 - 12 Noon                        Seminar

According to research on organizations over the past ten years (including not for profit and for profit endeavors) 45% will have consistent success and 55% will suffer from inconsistent, less than successful performance. There are factors that the leaders of high performing, consistent organizations understand and practice in order to inspire and enable people to achieve extraordinary results.

During this highly interactive workshop, participants will learn:

- How to lead by influence,
- Set SMART goals,
- Reduce errors and mistakes at the organizational and individual level,
- Communicate effectively by recognizing personal motivational style,
- Handle potential conflicts with others who share dissimilar styles.
