Centennial Strategy for

Eleanor Roosevelt National Historic Site

CENTENNIAL INITIATIVE

Site: ELRO

Year: 2007

Vision Statement

Resources significant to the parks' purposes are protected and preserved, with cultural and natural resources maintained in good condition and the parks' settings remaining unimpaired. The Roosevelt Home, Eleanor Roosevelt's Stone Cottage, Vanderbilt Mansion, and all other key structures throughout the parks are in good condition. Likewise, designed landscapes and river views throughout the parks are improved. Interpretive presentations and educational programs are upgraded. Visitors (actual and virtual) find interpretive materials appealing and enriching. Scholarship is facilitated to advance the understanding of the parks, guide interpretation and educational programs and explore interpretive themes from differing viewpoints. The parks attract substantial numbers of new visitors who reflect the Nation's diversity. A new maintenance facility is developed and there are sufficient staff and support facilities to manage resources and visitor programs properly and safely. Staff training and professional development are central to park operations. Partnership development is ongoing, with increased partnership involvement in preserving, protecting and operating the parks. Park staff and partners are actively engaged with each other in fulfilling this NPS Centennial vision.
