

Richard E. Greene

Regional Administrator

Richard Greene was appointed by President Bush in March 2003 as Regional Administrator for the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency Region 6, Dallas, Texas responsible for overseeing federal environmental programs throughout Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

Prior to this position, he served an unprecedented five terms as mayor of Arlington, Texas, during which time his city achieved more progress in the field of environmental protection than at any time in its history. At the same time, Arlington was recognized for its innovative economic development programs producing significant gains in building the commercial tax base of the city while creating thousands of jobs for the people of the community.

His business career includes work in the fields of higher education, the media, the Olympic movement as well as senior management roles in the automobile and banking industries.

Mayor Greene holds a B.S. degree in business administration and is a graduate of the School of Mortgage Banking at Northwestern University in Chicago.
