Introduction

Coverage

This report presents the results from the 1996 Service Annual Survey (SAS). This annual sample survey provides estimates of operating receipts of taxable firms and revenue and expenses of firms exempt from Federal income taxes for selected service industries.

The statistics presented in this report are summarized by kind-of-business classification based on the 1987 edition of the Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) manual issued by the Office of Management and Budget. The industries covered are defined in Division I of the SIC Manual and include: hotels, rooming houses, camps, and other lodging places (SIC 70); personal services (SIC 72); business services (SIC 73); automotive repair, services and parking (SIC 75); miscellaneous repair services (SIC 76); motion pictures (SIC 78); amusement and recreation services (SIC 79); health services (SIC 80); legal services (SIC 81); libraries and vocational schools (SIC's 823 and 824); social services (SIC 83); museums, art galleries, and botanical and zoological gardens (SIC 84); selected membership organizations (SIC's 861, 862, 864, and 869); and engineering, accounting, research, management, and related services (SIC 87). The survey also includes arrangement of passenger transportation (Division E, SIC 472) and real estate agents and managers (Division H, SIC 653).

The survey excludes from Division I of the SIC Manual, elementary and secondary schools (SIC 821); colleges, universities, professional schools, and junior colleges (SIC 822); miscellaneous educational services (SIC 829); labor unions and similar labor organizations (SIC 863); political organizations (SIC 865); religious organizations (SIC 866); private households (SIC 881); and services not elsewhere classified (SIC 899).

Separate estimates were developed for receipts of taxable firms and revenue of firms exempt from Federal income taxes for camps and recreational vehicle parks (SIC 703); selected amusement services (SIC's 792 and 7991, 7997 and 7999); selected health services (SIC's 801, 802, 805, 806, 808, and 809); legal services (SIC 81); libraries and vocational schools (SIC's 823 and 824); social services (SIC 83); museums, art galleries, and botanical and zoological gardens (SIC 84); research, testing, and development services (SIC 873); and selected management and public relation services (SIC 874, excluding 8744). Firms considered tax exempt include membership lodging (SIC 704), membership organizations (SIC 86), and noncommercial research organizations (SIC 8733). Firms in all remaining SIC's were defined to be taxable.

The estimates for tax-exempt firms were derived from a sample of employer firms only. For all other kinds of business presented here, data represent combined estimates for employers and nonemployers.

The survey excluded all government establishments classified in the covered industries, except for government-operated hospitals which were included.

Appendix A provides estimated measures of sampling variability (coefficients of variation) for the dollar volume estimates and all estimated ratios presented in the report. Appendix B gives an explanation of the survey coverage, sampling, and estimation methodology. Appendix C provides a description of each kind of business included in the report. Samples of the 1996 questionnaires are shown in Appendix D.

Data Expansion

This report has been expanded to include data for the following SIC's:

- 7212 - Garment pressing and agents for laundries and drycleaners
- 7312 - Outdoor advertising services
- 7322 - Adjustment and collection services
- 7334 - Photocopying and duplicating services
- 7335 - Commercial photography
- 7338 - Secretarial and court reporting services
- 7632 - Refrigeration and air-conditioning service and repair shops
- 7692 - Welding repair
- 8731 - Commercial physical and biological research
- 8733 - Noncommercial research organizations

Benchmarking

Because a new sample was introduced for the 1996 SAS, we asked all firms in the new sample to provide data for two consecutive years - 1995 and 1996. We used this extra year of data to "link" the estimates derived from the new and old samples. In order to do this, we performed a benchmarking operation. This benchmarking revised the previously published annual estimates of receipts, revenues, and expenses for 1993, 1994, and 1995 in a manner which —

- Constrained the 1992 annual estimates to the previously published figures from the 1992 Census of Service Industries.
- Constrained the 1995 annual estimates to those obtained for 1995 from the 1996 survey.
- Minimized differences between the year-to-year trends of the previously published estimates and the revised estimates.

We benchmarked estimates of receipts, revenues, and expenses at detailed kind-of-business levels (usually defined by 4-digit SIC codes) and added appropriate estimates to derive summary totals. This process assured additivity.

Nonemployer Revisions

The 1995 nonemployer receipts shown in this report reflect a change that adjusted previously published estimates by replacing imputed 1995 nonemployer data with administrative records data provided by other federal agencies.

Unpublished Estimates

Additional statistics, such as dollar volume estimates for some kinds of business not separately shown in this report, are produced as a byproduct of the regularly published statistics. These additional estimates have not been included in this publication because of high sampling variability, poor response rates, or other factors that result in their failure to meet Census Bureau standards for publication. The Bureau of the Census, upon written request, will release such figures for individual use, though not for publication. It should be noted that some unpublished figures can be derived directly from this report by subtracting published estimates from their respective totals. However, the figures obtained by such subtraction would be subject to the poor response rates or high sampling variability described previously for unpublished kinds of business.

Dollar Values

All dollar values presented in this report are expressed in current dollars; that is, the estimates are not adjusted to a constant dollar series. Consequently, when comparing estimates to prior years, users also should consider price level changes.

Census Disclosure Rules

In accordance with Federal law governing Census Bureau reports, no estimates are published that would disclose the operations of an individual firm.

Chapter 5. Automotive Repair, Services, and Parking and Miscellaneous Repair Services (SIC's 75 and 76)

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

Receipts in 1996 for automotive repair, services, and parking services (SIC 75) were $106.7 billion, up 7.6 percent from 1995. Receipts in 1996 for automotive rental and leasing, without drivers (SIC 751) rose 10.5 percent from 1995 to $29.4 billion. About 56.0 percent of the total receipts for automotive rental and leasing, without drivers, was from the short-term rental of passenger cars, trucks, utility trailers and recreational vehicles. In 1996, receipts for passenger car rental (SIC 7514) increased 12.5 percent from 1995 to $14.5 billion.

Automotive repair shops (SIC 753) had receipts of $62.2 billion in 1996, up 6.1 percent from the previous year. In 1996, receipts for general automotive repair shops (SIC 7538), which includes diesel engine truck and passenger car engine repairs, increased 5.5 percent from 1995 to $28.9 billion.

Miscellaneous repair services (SIC 76) had receipts in 1996 of $46.2 billion, up 3.0 percent from 1995. Electrical repair shops (SIC 762), including radio and television repair, had receipts of $14.6 billion. Radio and television repair shops (SIC 7622) had estimated receipts of $2.8 billion in 1996.

Chapter 7. Health Services (SIC 80)

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

Taxable Firms

Receipts in 1996 for taxable firms providing health services (SIC 80) were approximately $399.2 billion in 1996, up 6.1 percent from 1995. Offices and clinics of doctors of medicine (SIC 801) accounted for about 43 percent of all taxable health services receipts in 1996, reaching $173.5 billion and increasing 3.3 percent from the previous year. About 46 percent of these receipts were from patient services provided in doctors' offices or clinics, and approximately 20 percent were from hospital inpatient services. In addition, hospital outpatient services accounted for 12 percent of total receipts in 1996.

Private insurance payments were the source of 49 percent of total receipts for offices and clinics of doctors of medicine (employer firms only), while Medicare and Medicaid payments combined for about 30 percent of their total receipts. Receipts for nursing and personal care facilities (SIC 805) increased 7.6 percent from 1995 to $44.3 billion in 1996. Taxable hospitals (SIC 806) had receipts of $44.7 billion in 1996, up 16.3 percent from the previous year. Receipts for medical and dental laboratories (SIC 807) increased 3.3 percent from 1995, reaching $16.0 billion in 1996. Receipts for home health care (SIC 808) and kidney dialysis centers (SIC 8092) rose 8.6 and 3.9 percent, respectively.

Tax-Exempt Firms—and Organization

Revenue of tax-exempt health services firms and organizations (SIC 80 pt.) reached $401.1 billion in 1996, a 4.1 percent increase from 1995. Expenses for tax-exempt health service firms and organizations were approximately $389.4 billion in 1996, up 4.4 percent from 1995.

Revenue for tax-exempt hospitals (SIC 806), including government operated facilities, was $337.8 billion, up 3.9 percent from the previous year.

¹Estimates are obtained from a sample of employer firms only.

Note: Unless otherwise noted, estimates are obtained from a sample of employer and nonemployer firms. For selected SIC's (801, 802, 805, 806, 808, and 809), estimates are for taxable firms only. Revenue and expense estimates for tax-exempt firms and organizations are shown in Tables 7.3 and 7.5. Firms in all other kinds of business were considered by definition to be subject to Federal income tax. Estimates are not adjusted for price changes. Group totals may include kinds of business not shown separately. See Appendix A, Table A-7.1 for estimated measures of sampling variability (coefficients of variation).

Appendix A. Measures of Sampling Variability

RELIABILITY OF THE ESTIMATES

An estimate based on a sample survey potentially contains two types of errors - sampling and nonsampling. Sampling error occurs because characteristics differ among sample units and because only a subset of the entire population is measured in a sample survey. Nonsampling errors can be attributed to many sources in the collection and processing of the data. The accuracy of a survey result is affected jointly by these two types of errors.

Measures of Sampling Variability

Because the estimates are based on a sample, exact agreement with the results that would be obtained from a complete census of firms on the sampling frame using the same enumeration procedures is not expected. However, because each firm on the sampling frame has a known probability of being selected into the sample, it is possible to estimate the sampling variability of the survey estimates.

The standard error of an estimate is a measure of the variability among the estimates from all possible samples of the same size and design. The estimated coefficient of variation of an estimate is the standard error of the estimate divided by the estimate. The estimated coefficients of variation are expressed as percents. Note that measures of sampling variability, such as the standard error or estimated coefficient of variation, are estimated from the sample and are also subject to sampling variability. Estimated coefficients of variation for dollar volume estimates and estimated ratios are shown in Tables A-1.1 through A-8.2.

The estimated coefficients of variation presented in the tables permit certain confidence statements about the sample estimates. The particular sample used in this survey was one of a large number of samples of the same size that could have been selected using the same design. In about 90 percent of these samples, the estimates would differ from the results of a complete enumeration by less than 1.65 times the standard error of the estimate. In about 95 percent of the samples, the estimates would differ from the result of a complete enumeration by less than twice the standard error of the estimate.

It is important to note that the standard error and estimated coefficient of variation only measure sampling variance. They do not capture any systematic biases in the estimates. (Bias is the difference, averaged over all possible samples of the same size and design, between the estimate and the population value being estimated.)

Nonsampling Errors

In the Service Annual Survey, as in other surveys, nonsampling errors can be attributed to the following sources: (1) inability to obtain information about all cases in the sample, (2) response errors, (3) definitional difficulties, (4) differences in the interpretation of the questions, (5) mistakes in coding or keying the data obtained, and (6) other errors of collection, response, coverage, and processing. These nonsampling errors also occur in complete censuses. Although no direct measurement of the potential biases due to nonsampling errors has been obtained, precautionary steps were taken in all phases of the collection, processing, and tabulation of the data in an effort to minimize their influence.

A potentially large source of bias in the estimates is due to imputing data for nonrespondents and for data which fail edit. For all kinds of business combined, imputed receipts amount to about 17 percent of the national receipts estimate for employer firms. For revenue, the figure is about 11 percent.

Explanatory Material

Definition of Terms

Receipts. (Basic dollar volume measure for service firms subject to Federal income tax.) Charges or billings to customers or clients for services rendered, from the use of facilities, and from merchandise sold during 1995 and 1996 whether or not payment was received in those years. Health practitioners and firms providing legal services reported payments received in 1995 and 1996 regardless of when services were rendered. Receipts do not include nonoperating income from interest, investments, gifts, loans, contributions, or grants. Receipts also exclude sales taxes or other taxes (occupancy, admissions, etc.) collected from customers and forwarded directly to a local, State, or Federal tax agency and receipts of establishments whose primary activity is other than service (e.g. manufacturing, wholesale, or retail establishments). They do, however, include receipts other than from services rendered (e.g. sales of merchandise) by establishments primarily engaged in performing services and classified in the service industries.

Revenue. (Basic dollar volume measure for firms exempt from Federal income tax.) Sample Design

Introduction

The Service Annual Survey (SAS) is a probability sample of employer firms engaged in various selected service industries. By firm, we mean a business organization consisting of one or more establishments under common ownership or control. (An establishment is a single physical location where business is conducted or where services are performed.) The sample covers both taxable firms and firms exempt from Federal income taxes. Firms with no employees, or nonemployers, are included in the estimates through administrative records data provided by other Federal agencies in the survey year.

Initial Sampling

The sampling frame for the SAS was constructed from the Census Bureau's Standard Statistical Establishment List (SSEL) as of December 31, 1994. The SSEL is a multi-relational database that contains a record for each known establishment connected with an employer firm. A firm can be classified as either a multiunit or a singleunit firm. A multiunit firm is a firm which owns or operates two or more establishments, whereas a singleunit firm is a firm which owns or operates only one establishment. Establishments that are owned by the same multiunit firm are linked using a unique six-digit identification number, called an alpha number, assigned by the Census Bureau. A link between each establishment and its corresponding Employer Identification Number (EIN) is also maintained. The EIN is a number assigned by the IRS to any legal entity that anticipates hiring employees. Under the Federal Insurance

Contributions Act (FICA), each firm with paid employees must have an EIN. The EIN is used by the firm as an identifier to report social security payments for its employees to the IRS.

There is a simple structure that connects an employer firm with its establishments via the EIN. Essentially an employer firm is a cluster of one or more EINs and EINs are clusters of one or more establishments. Each employer firm is associated with at least one EIN and only one firm can use a given EIN. However, an employer firm may use several different EINs for reporting to the IRS. Similarly there is a one-to-many relationship between EINs and establishments. Each EIN is associated with one or more establishments, but each establishment is associated with only one EIN.

The sampling frame for the SAS contains two types of sampling units — alpha numbers and EINs. Both sampling units represent clusters of one or more establishments. The primary stratification of the frame is by kind-of-business group. We further stratify (substratify) the sampling units within kind-of-business groups by a measure of size related to their annual receipts or revenue as reported in the 1992 Census of Service Industries. To reduce the variance of the estimates, the sampling units with the largest measures of size are selected "with certainty." This means they are sure to be selected and will represent only themselves (i.e., have a selection probability of one and a sampling weight of one). Within each kind of business a substratum boundary (or cutoff) that divides the certainty units from the noncertainty units is determined. These cutoffs are based on a statistical analysis of data from the 1992 Census of Service Industries. Accordingly, the cutoffs are on a 1992 receipts (or revenue) basis. This analysis is also used to allocate the sample among the kind-of-business groups. The allocation results in the minimum sample size required to achieve specified sampling variability constraints for receipts (or revenue) estimates for different kind-of-business groups.

The first step in the sample selection identified certainty firms. If a firm had receipts or revenue (for 1994 adjusted to a 1992 basis) greater than the certainty cutoff for its major kind of business, the firm was selected into the sample with certainty. For multiunit firms selected with certainty, the sampling unit is the alpha number. For singleunit firms selected with certainty, the sampling unit is the EIN. If a firm was selected with certainty and had more than one establishment at the time of sampling, any new establishments that the firm acquires, even if under new or different EINs, are included in the sample with certainty. This is because the firm was selected using its unique six-digit alpha number. However, if a singleunit firm was selected with certainty, only future establishments associated with that firm's EIN are included with certainty; any new EINs that might later be associated with that firm are subjected to sampling through the quarterly birth selection procedure (described later).

All firms not selected with certainty were subjected to sampling on an EIN basis. If a firm had more than one EIN, each of its EINs was treated as a separate sampling unit. To be eligible for the initial sampling, an EIN had to have nonzero payroll in 1994. The EINs were then stratified according to their major kind of business and their estimated receipts or revenue (on a 1992 basis). Within each noncertainty stratum, a simple random sample of EINs was selected. The sampling rates for the EINs selected from the noncertainty strata varied between 1 in 1.4 and 1 in 371.

Sampling New Employer Firms (Births)

Periodically, we update the sample to represent new EINs issued since the initial sample selection. These new EINs, called births, are new EINs recently assigned by the IRS, on the latest available IRS mailing list for FICA taxpayers, and assigned a kind-of-business classification (if possible) by the Social Security Administration (SSA). EIN births are sampled on a quarterly basis (in November of the survey year and in February, May, and August of the year following the survey year) using a two-phase selection procedure. In the first phase, births are stratified by kind of business and a measure of size based on expected employment or quarterly payroll. A relatively large sample is drawn and canvassed to obtain a more reliable measure of size, consisting of receipts (or revenue) in two recent months, and a more detailed kind-of-business code, if needed.

Using this more reliable information, the selected births from the first phase are subjected to probability proportional-to-size sampling with overall probabilities equivalent to those used in drawing the initial sample from the 1994 SSEL. Because of the time it takes for a new employer firm to acquire an EIN from the IRS, and because of the time needed to accomplish the two-phase birth-selection procedure, EIN births are added to the sample approximately nine months after they begin operation.

The EIN births that are selected in the quarterly birth-selection procedure in November of the survey year are included in the main mailing of the SAS questionnaires in January of the following year.

To better represent all EIN births in the survey year, and specifically to account for the coverage lag in the birth-selection procedure, we add EIN births that are selected in the year following the survey year. We mail survey forms to these births in June and August to supplement the main survey mailing.

If a selected EIN ceases to be an employer, it becomes inactive. An inactive EIN is not mailed if it becomes inactive prior to the initial mailout for the survey year. An inactive EIN that resumes being an employer becomes a reactivation and is mailed during the initial mailing (if active at the time) or as part of one of the two supplemental mailings.

Estimation Procedure

To be eligible for the sample canvass and tabulation in a given year, a noncertainty EIN must meet both of the following requirements:

- It must be on the latest available IRS mailing list for FICA taxpayers from the previous quarter.
- It must have been selected from the SSEL in either the initial sampling or during the quarterly birth-selection procedure.

EINs selected into the sample with certainty are not dropped from canvass and tabulation if they are no longer on the IRS mailing list. Rather, the firm that used the EIN is contacted, and if a successor EIN is found, it is added to the survey. For both inactive and reactivated EINs, data are tabulated for only the portion of the survey period that EIN reported payroll to the IRS.

Estimates from the SAS are based on the summation of weighted data (reported or imputed), where the weight for a given sampling unit is the inverse of its probability of selection.
