

The following is an example article about Grants.gov. It is provided for your convenience for use in publicizing the availability of this valuable service. Feel free to use it in your newsletter, website and/or other communications.

A Single Website to Find and Apply for Federal Grants

Grant seekers can now easily access information on, and apply for, thousands of federal grants through one secure internet source managed by the federal government. 100% of grant opportunities offered by all 26 federal grant-making agencies and many federal commissions are now available through www.grants.gov.

Grants.gov enables grant-making agencies and the grant community to come together to make grants management easier and more efficient for everyone. State, local and tribal governments, colleges and universities, research institutions, non-profits and other organizations will now have the ability to find over $400 billion in grants annually, from more than 1000 different grant programs at one online location.

The search capabilities that are built into the website make finding grants faster and researching grants more efficient. By subscribing to the Grant Notices update service, when new grants matching your specified interests are posted, email notifications are sent to the subscriber—including the title, the agency name and a link which can take them right to the grant. These features make keeping on top of newly available grants of interest to grant applicant organizations a matter of minutes a day.

According to the township of Lexington, SC, "We've become aware of funding opportunities that might have been missed or we didn't know to think of, helping us expand rapidly to meet the growing need for services. We cannot thank Grants.gov enough and emphasize how valuable it has been to us as end users!"

The Grants.gov application process eliminates the need to learn and comply with multiple agency specific system requirements. One registration is all that is needed to apply to all federal grant opportunities. Additionally, electronic applications that can be downloaded to any computer, online user support tools and personalized assistance from a dedicated Grants.gov Contact Center customer support team, all come together—making it easier to apply for grants.

Grants.gov currently gets 1.5 million visitors a week and distributes more than a million weekly emails to subscribers of its grant opportunities.

You can find out more about Grants.gov by visiting the website at www.grants.gov.