

ERIC Microfiche Digitization

Let ERIC Digitize Your Older Documents on Microfiche

Do you have older materials in ERIC or know anyone who does? ERIC is scanning nearly 340,000 documents currently available only in microfiche. With permission from copyright holders, these documents can be made available electronically.

ERIC has received more than 124,000 permissions to date, and nearly 100,000 older documents have already been added to the online ERIC Collection. Go to www.eric.ed.gov to learn more or to start the permissions process for your older documents.

Keep Informed

Stay up to date by checking the ERIC Web site at www.eric.ed.gov. In the Spotlight on the ERIC home page highlights the latest ERIC news, updates, and features.

The ERIC Mission

To provide a comprehensive, easy-to-use, searchable Internet-based bibliographic and full-text database of education research and information for educators, researchers, and the general public.

than 225,000 full-text documents*

Use ERIC for Research

Whether you are seeking information on an education topic or articles by a specific author, ERIC's search tools can help you identify current and archival materials for your research.

ERIC offers basic and advanced search options that provide:

- The ability to search by subject terms, authors, titles, and other characteristics
- Online access to the Thesaurus of ERIC Descriptors, a controlled vocabulary that will help you search with greater precision
- Recommendations for items related to those you have already identified
- Citation management enabling you to print, e-mail, save, or export selected records to commercial citation management software to help with your literature reviews and reference lists
- The capacity to save and rerun searches
- Access to more than 225,000 full-text items from ERIC, as well as expanded access to more full text through links to publishers and library holdings

ERIC is committed to meeting the education information needs of a diverse audience of researchers, educators, librarians, administrators, and others.

ERIC Content

ERIC is the world's largest digital library of education resources, with more than 1.2 million records of journal articles, books, papers, reports, and other materials indexed from 1966 to the present. More than 600 journals are indexed in ERIC, and more than 80 percent of those are peer-reviewed.

Materials in ERIC come from many well-regarded sources: scholarly organizations, professional associations, commercial publishers, research centers, policy organizations, state and federal agencies, university presses, and individual researchers.

The ERIC database is updated frequently in an effort to keep pace with current issues in education. New records are released twice weekly through the ERIC Web site. More than three thousand items are provided in monthly updates to content vendors.

Gain Easy Access to ERIC

The online ERIC digital library is widely available and easy to access:

- At the ERIC Web site, www.eric.ed.gov
- Through commercial databases such as CSA Illumina and ProQuest, EBSCOhost, OCLC FirstSearch, Ovid, and Thomson DialogWeb
- Through Internet searches conducted via Google and Google Scholar, MSN, and Yahoo

Contribute Your Research to ERIC

ERIC users conduct more than 8 million searches each month. By submitting your work to ERIC, you will ensure that a global audience of researchers, practitioners, and the general public can access it. Hundreds of publishers, organizations, and individual researchers already contribute materials to ERIC's widely searched collection. As a contributing author, you retain copyright and the freedom to submit your work for publication elsewhere.

ERIC will make your work:

- Available to thousands of searchers interested in education topics
- Easy to obtain as free, downloadable PDFs
- Part of an enduring collection of education literature indexed from 1966 to the present

Submitting documents to ERIC is fast and easy using the online submission system at www.eric.ed.gov. Consider including your work in the world's largest and best-known resource for education research.
