- NEW! Sharing the Harvest, 2nd Edition "is an extraordinary book, an opening to a new world in which growing and eating food will be a sharing among humans, between farmers and surrounding communities, not a commercial venture for profit. It is both utopian and practical, inspiring and down-to-earth. It is a treasure, rich with suggestions, exciting for what possibilities it foresees for the human race." Howard Zinn. Elizabeth Henderson, with Robyn Van En, 2007. 303pp. $30.00
- Organic Dairy Farming, A Resource for Farmers, Written for the transitioning and new organic farmer, this book explains everything from organic soil management, calf care and mastitis control to the certification process and marketing for the organic premium. Combining up-to-date advice from farmers, veterinarians, researchers and consultants in the organic community, it demonstrates how they have successfully applied organic practices on their own farms. An essential tool for both the farmer and the agricultural professional. Editor, Jody Padgham, 2006. 192pp. $15.00
- The Organic Decision: Transitioning to Organic Dairy Production, Are you prepared to transition? Organic milk production is significantly different from conventional dairy farming and takes several years. An informative resource guide that includes instructions and information to help you on your way to organic production. By Steve Richards, Steve Bulkley, Craig Alexander, Wayne Knoblauch & Dan Demaine, 2002. stapled 41 pp. $10.00
