

Chippa Granite Returns

In the 1950s the New Hampshire Planning and Development Commission created a mythical character named Chippa Granite to promote the state's resources, including its agricultural crops.

Chippa Granite became a beloved part of New Hampshire culture a half century ago, showing up in media advertising, marketing brochures and posters all over the state and beyond.

Two classic Chippa Granite posters promoting agricultural commodities have been rescued from the dustbin of history, graphically restored and made into prints suitable for framing.

Prints are available for sale at $30-$75 each plus shipping and handling of $5. All proceeds support youth agricultural activities in the state.
