U.S. MONTHLY HOUSE PRICE INDEX DECLINES 0.3 PERCENT FROM APRIL TO MAY

WASHINGTON, DC – U.S. home prices fell 0.3 percent on a seasonally-adjusted basis from April to May, according to OFHEO's monthly House Price Index (HPI). For the 12 months ending in May, U.S. prices fell 4.8 percent. Since the April 2007 peak, prices have fallen 4.9 percent.

The OFHEO monthly index is calculated using purchase prices of houses backing mortgages that have been sold to or guaranteed by Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac. For the nine Census Divisions, seasonally-adjusted monthly price changes from April to May ranged from -1.2 percent in the South Atlantic Division to 0.3 percent in the Pacific Division. The price increase was the first in the Pacific Division since March 2007.

"It is very hard to draw conclusions from a one-month number, especially in these uncertain times; but the numbers in the Pacific, East and West North Central Divisions may be good signs," said OFHEO Director James B. Lockhart. "The HPI is based upon mortgages made by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, which, on average, are generally higher quality than those in other indexes."

"As Congress works on finalizing GSE legislation, which includes legislative reforms improving the regulatory structure of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, it should be noted these reforms may have a positive impact on future house price performance," Lockhart said.

Monthly index values and appreciation rate estimates are provided in the table and graphs on the following pages. All estimates are seasonally adjusted and, as with OFHEO's quarterly HPI, will be revised in later releases. As indicated in OFHEO's fourth quarter 2007 HPI report, quarterly HPI releases will include updated monthly data presented in the same format as the attached table and figures.

For detailed information concerning the monthly HPI, please see the HPI Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs), at <http://www.ofheo.gov/hpi.aspx?Nav=60>. The next release of monthly index data will be on August 26, 2008, when OFHEO will publish monthly index data through June and results for the second quarter of 2008.
