Dear Sen. Klobuchar,

When you came to Twin Lakes and told my classroom about your Carbon Buster Award of Excellence I was inspired to write about how I'm helping the Earth. Every time I leave my bedroom, I try to turn off my lights and the T.V.

To make electricity, you have to burn coal. So if all of us used less electricity, less coal will be burned. Everytime I go to a restaurant or a movie theater,

I blow dry to dry my hands because to make paper towels or any type of paper, is made from trees, and trees take in CO₂ and give off oxygen. Every time I use a towel after a shower, I hang my towel up to dry because I would have to wash the towel and that would waste water. And finally, I also recycle. I recycle paper and cans. If there is any paper

I didn't love, I'll throw it in a recycling bin. If there are any cans I would throw them in a different recycling bin because if I put them in the same bin, it wouldn't be used right and some other people could use those things.
And that's how I'm helping the Earth.

From Twin Lake Elem.,

Brandon Cramer
