

2. Lifeline Assistance Plans

In 1984, the FCC, in conjunction with the states and local telephone companies, established a lifeline program designed to promote universal service by helping low income individuals afford the monthly cost of telephone service (see the description of Plan 1, below).¹ In 1985, the FCC adopted a broader lifeline program, again designed to help low income individuals afford the monthly costs of service (see Plan 2, below).² In 1987, the FCC adopted Link-Up America, designed to help low income households pay the costs of connection and installation (see Plan 3, below).³

All of the assistance plans generically appear in the FCC's Rules as "lifeline assistance." The first two, which focus on monthly assistance are usually called "lifeline," and the third program is called "Link-Up America."

The federal portion of the programs are currently funded through per-presubscribed-line access charges paid by interexchange carriers, who may pass on the expenses of these charges to their customers. The programs also have matching local rate reductions approved by state utility commissions, which may take the form of a reduction in monthly charges or a reduction in service connection and installation charges.

After state programs are certified by the FCC, local exchange carriers are reimbursed through the National Exchange Carrier Association (NECA) for program expenses. These expenses are not funded by federal tax dollars. The FCC is monitoring subscriber participation and telephone usage to determine program benefits and costs.⁴ Table 2.1 lists the entities that have been certified by the FCC and the dates of their certification.

Reg. 1371 (January 13, 1986) at para. 5; and Establishment of a Program to Monitor the Impact of Joint Board Decisions, Order, CC Docket No. 87-339, 2 FCC Rcd 5266 (1987).

Lifeline certification rules, in both Plans 2 and 3, require participating entities to verify subscriber eligibility annually. In general, local exchange companies rely on state-established means tests to meet FCC verification requirements. Only California's lifeline assistance program, grandfathered in Plan 1, continues to use a statistical approach to verify eligibility. Annual recertification of Lifeline programs by the FCC is contingent upon the income eligibility criteria established in the initial letter to participating states and local exchange carriers.

Table 2.2 provides a list of states participating in the Link-Up program and shows both reimbursements and the number of subscribers receiving connection assistance between January 1996 and December 31, 1996. Table 2.3 provides a similar survey of states participating in the Lifeline monthly local rate discount programs.⁵

Under Lifeline and Link-Up programs, benefits are available to persons who pass a "means" test such as eligibility for food stamps or Medicaid. A second requirement for FCC certification is that each applicant's eligibility for benefits be verified. The state has considerable latitude in selecting means tests, shaping the benefits, and determining the geographic availability of the programs. Table 2.4 provides a description of the income means test used by each state utility commission or local telephone company. State regulatory agencies or telephone companies determine consumer qualifications for Lifeline pursuant to standards set by narrowly targeted programs approved by the Commission. States have flexibility to target support based on their particular needs and circumstances.

The following three federal Lifeline assistance plans are currently in effect:

Plan 1 - On December 19, 1984, the FCC adopted an optional plan which allows a total reduction in fixed charges for telephone service equal to the federal subscriber line charge (SLC) for low income households. This is accomplished by a 50% reduction in the SLC, plus a state-funded reduction in the basic local telephone rate equal to 50% of the SLC. The assistance is available for a single telephone line for the principal residence of eligible households.

Plan 2 - On December 10, 1985, the FCC adopted broader Lifeline assistance measures for low income households providing for a total reduction in fixed charges for telephone service of twice the amount of the SLC. This reduction would be achieved through a waiver of the full federal SLC up to the amount matched by state assistance, provided that the state plan meets the following federal requirements:

5 Tables 2.2, 2.3, and 2.5 through 2.10 were filed by NECA in CC Docket No. 87-339 on May 16, 1997.

- a) means test -- highly targeted assistance plan which focuses on those individuals with limited incomes;
- b) verification required -- procedures must be established which routinely check to ensure that those individuals eligible under the plans are the individuals benefiting under the plan; and
- c) availability -- assistance is only available for a single telephone line for the principal residence of eligible households.

The state matching contribution can be in the form of reduced local service rates, reduced connection charges or reduced deposit requirements. No restrictions are imposed on the source of funding for state assistance.

Plan 3 - On April 16, 1987, the FCC adopted a two-part plan, Link-Up America, to connect low income households to the telephone network. Under the first part, federal assistance will be provided to pay one-half of the connection charges, up to a maximum of $30.00, assessed for commencing telephone service.

Under the second part, when a local exchange company (LEC) offers a deferred payment plan, not to exceed 12 months, for service commencement charges and it does not assess the subscribers any interest charges, federal assistance will be available to that LEC to cover the interest on up to $200 of connection costs.

As initially implemented, Link-Up America assistance was available only if the applicant met the income criteria set by the state, lived at an address where there had been no telephone service for the last three months, and had not received Link-Up benefits for the past two years. On June 23, 1988, the FCC adopted a Notice of Proposed Rule Making in CC Docket No. 88-341, which proposed eliminating the two non-income criteria. This Notice was adopted in response to waiver requests from the states of Maine and New York. Some telephone companies had declined to participate in the Link-Up America program due to the existence of non-means-based eligibility criteria. The Commission was concerned that the three-month and two-year eligibility rules were discouraging participation in Link-Up America. Data from a pilot program indicated that approximately 15 percent of Link-Up applicants had been rejected for failure to meet the three month rule. Therefore, the Commission proposed eliminating these rules for states and telephone companies that verify income eligibility but retaining these rules and requiring prior service verification in cases in which income eligibility is not verified.

On February 27, 1989, the FCC adopted an Order eliminating the two non-income criteria for eligibility. Connection assistance is now available for one telephone line per household, at a subscriber's principal place of residence. To become eligible for assistance when income is verified, a residential subscriber must meet the requirements of the state established income test, and not be a dependent, unless the subscriber is more than 60 years old. Alternatively, when income is not verified, a resident may self-certify according to the criteria stated above. However, the entity receiving certification (state or company) must verify that the customer has lived at an address where there has been no telephone service for at least three months, and has not received assistance within the last two years.

The Link-Up America rules encourage, but do not require, states to match the federal benefits and cover the remaining half of the connection charges. The states and LECs are encouraged to develop deferred payment plans for service commencement charges as well as to provide reductions in, or waivers of, security deposit requirements for low income customers who do not have poor credit histories.

Two states, California and New York, began offering a Lifeline assistance program pursuant to Plan 1 in 1985. New York switched to Plan 2 in November 1987, leaving California as the only state offering Plan 1. All other states offering Lifeline assistance to help low income subscribers pay monthly charges, do so under Plan 2.

Federal assistance for the lifeline plans was funded through the interstate carrier common line charge (CCLC) until April 1989, at which time all three plans began to be funded through direct billing of the interexchange carriers (IXCs) by NECA. Under the funding procedures, adopted in 1989, IXCs are responsible for paying lifeline assistance if they have at least 0.05% of the nationwide presubscribed lines.

Under the current funding process, which began on April 1, 1989, the reimbursements under the program are allocated based on expenses submitted to NECA by participating LECs. NECA files a lifeline assistance rate which is billed directly to interexchange carriers. The revenues are used to pay certified local exchange carriers for matching lifeline assistance costs. Further, each state determines the scope of program eligibility through the selection of means tested state assistance programs like AFDC, SSI, food stamps and medical assistance. The federal portion of the lifeline assistance funds are replenished from revenues from the IXCs based on the number of presubscribed lines they serve.

State totals of subscribers benefiting from the Lifeline and Link Up programs, respectively, are shown in Tables 2.5 and 2.8. State totals of payments to subscribers through rate discounts provided by the Lifeline and Link Up programs are shown in Tables 2.6 and 2.9. The payments shown in these tables do not include local matching rate reductions. Universal Service Fund payments to participating telephone companies in each state for Lifeline monthly local service discounts are shown in Table 2.7. Payments to participating carriers for Link Up connection discounts are shown in Table 2.10.

Table 2.11 shows the number of customer lines in states where Lifeline and Link-Up programs have been certified through December 31, 1996.

In 1996, 5.7 million subscribers received reduced monthly rates under the provisions of the Lifeline and Link Up programs. Rate reductions have included a combination of matching state and local telephone company discounts. The Lifeline program makes it possible for unemployed subscribers to remain on the network, and the Link-Up program makes it possible for new subscribers to place telephone numbers on job applications, increasing employment possibilities. The Link-Up America Program which connects subscribers to the network has added 4.6 million new connections since 1987. To date, 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, participate in at least one of the optional telephone assistance programs.

The Communications Act of 1996 ("Act") requires the FCC to evaluate Universal Service programs. On March 8, 1996, the Commission initiated a proceeding, establishing a Joint Board in Docket 96-45, as required by the Act. On November 7, 1996, the Federal-State Joint Board adopted a Recommended Decision, as required by Section 254 of the Act regarding universal service. In the Decision, the Joint Board recommended that the Commission modify the Lifeline and Link Up programs in order to further competitive and technological neutrality. The Joint Board recommended that the Commission ensure the availability of Lifeline and Link Up to low-income consumers in every state and territory by requiring the participation of all telecommunications carriers eligible for universal service support. Additionally, the Joint Board recommended that low-income consumers have access to all of the services designated for universal service support. The Joint Board recommended prohibiting the disconnection of Lifeline service for non-payment of toll charges and providing support for voluntary toll blocking and toll limitation for Lifeline and Link Up consumers. The Joint Board recommended that carriers be prohibited from requiring substantial service deposits from Lifeline customers who elect toll-blocking services.

On May 7, 1997, the Commission voted to adopt the Joint Board's recommendations to make three broad categories of changes to the Lifeline and Link Up programs so that they better comport with the Commission's universal service principles and the 1996 Act's renewed concern for low-income consumers. First, the Commission agreed with the Joint Board's recommendation to expand Lifeline to make it available in all states, territories, and commonwealths of the United States, to modify the state matching requirement, and increase the federal Lifeline support amount. Second, the Commission agreed to adopt the Joint Board's recommendation to make the contribution and distribution of low-income support competitively and technologically neutral by requiring equitable and nondiscriminatory contributions from all providers of interstate telecommunications services, and by allowing all eligible telecommunications carriers to receive support for offering Lifeline and Link Up service. Third, the Commission adopted the Joint Board's recommendation to provide low-income consumers with access to the same services as those supported in rural, insular, and high cost areas; and policies which prohibit carriers from requiring service deposits from Lifeline customers who elect toll-limitation services. The Commission agreed with the Joint Board's recommendation to prohibit the disconnection of local service for non-payment of charges incurred for toll calls.

Note: State commissions may request FCC certification in Federal assistance programs for all carriers in the state or for selected local exchange carriers.

Local telephone companies may request FCC certification independent of state action. Where no state action is taken, the LEC is listed in the table under participating program along with the date certified by the FCC.

State commission requests for certification may follow the approval of local companies certified by the FCC. A state commission may have two dates where certification reflects an extension of eligibility within the state to a more inclusive program for low-income subscribers.

The list of certified states and/or local telephone companies indicates the extent of participation by carriers and the availability of Lifeline and Link-Up assistance in each state.

* California is the only state still offering a Lifeline program under Plan 1 (the 50% waiver of the SLC).
