

Plug-In To eCycling

Partnership Agreement Between Staples, the Product Stewardship Institute, U.S. EPA, Envirocycle, and Leading Electronics Manufacturers

On this day, January 10, 2004, the following leading electronics manufacturers join together in partnership with Staples, the Product Stewardship Institute, and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, to pilot a voluntary shared responsibility approach for electronics recycling. All electronics collected through this pilot will be processed by Envirocycle in an environmentally sound manner and paid for by participating manufacturers and Staples. EPA applauds each of these organizations for their commitment to testing approaches to building a national infrastructure for electronics recycling.
