E1. Definitions

E1. ENCLOSURE 1

DEFINITIONS

E1.1. Disposition Schedule. A document governing, on a continuing basis, the mandatory disposition of a record series of an organization or agency. Also known as a "records schedule," "records control schedule," "retention schedule," or "records retention schedule." Enclosure 4 to reference (d) contains the only authorized Disposition Schedule for the Office Secretary of Defense (OSD). Also the General Records Schedule (GRS) which is a schedule issued by the Archivist of the United States, governs the disposition of specified recurring series common to several or all agencies of the Federal Government. These series include civilian personnel and payroll records, procurement, budget, travel, electronic, audiovisual and administrative management records. When records described in the GRS are used by any Federal Agency, their disposition is governed thereby. Exceptions may be granted only by the Archivist of the U.S. The GRS does not apply to an Agency's program records. "Program records" are those peculiar to an Agency's mission or not "common to several or all Agencies of the Federal Government."

E1.2. Life Cycle of Records. The concept that records pass through three stages: creation, maintenance and use, and disposition.

E1.3. National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). Storage facility for permanent records, located in College Park, Maryland.

E1.4. Non-Record. Material not usually included within the definition of Records, such as extra copies of documents, but only if the sole reason such copies are preserved is for convenience of reference; library and museum material, but only if such material is made or acquired and preserved solely for reference or exhibition purposes; and stocks of publications. This latter category does not include record sets of publications, posters, and maps that serve as evidence of Agency activities and have value for the information they contain.

E1.5. Permanent Record. Records appraised by the Archivist of the United States as having enduring value because they document the organization and functions of the Agency that created or received them and/or because they contain significant information on persons, things, problems, and conditions with which the Agency deals. The Archivist of the U.S. estimates that no more than 5 percent of all records generated by the Federal Government are permanent.

E1.6. Personal Papers. Papers of a private or nonofficial character that pertain only to an individual's personal affairs that are kept in the office of a Federal official and clearly designated by that official as nonofficial. Personal papers are required to be filed separately from official records of the office. See enclosure 10 of reference (d) for additional guidance.

E1.7. Records. All books, papers, maps, photographs, machine-readable materials, or other documentary materials, regardless of physical form or characteristics, made or received by an Agency of the U.S. Government under Federal law or in connection with the transaction of public business and preserved or appropriate for preservation by that Agency or its legitimate successor as evidence of the organization, functions, policies, decisions, procedures, operations, or other activities of the Government or because of the informational value of data contained therein.

E1.8. Records Management. That area of general administrative management concerned with achieving economy and efficiency in the creation, use and maintenance, and disposition of records.

E1.9. Records Manager. The person responsible for or engaged in a records management program. Sometimes called records officer or records administrator.

E1.10. Temporary Records. Records designated for retention for a specified period of time and that are then authorized to be destroyed in the current files area. Temporary records are most commonly found among Housekeeping Records and administrative files.
