Zadoc D. Duncan being duly sworn, makes oath that he was captured June 23 1863 near Concord Coffee County Tennessee by Col. W. Alders Cavalry and taken to Johnson Island, and there until 26 or 27 February 1865 then affiant was sent to Aiken in America 12 miles below Richmond, Africa got there 3 March 1865. Was paroled and sent South until 1st June 1865 affiant went then to Augusta, and was there when Lee's Army surrendered then affiant left there and came to Chatham all the army had surrendered before affiant left Augusta then when got to Chatham they sent affiant to Nashville before they would permit him to go home, at Nashville on the 14 May 1865 affiant took the oath of allegiance before they would let him.

Affiant further states that he was injured in the fight at Murfreesboro on the front line whilst holding a Comrades Head, who had been struck in the head by a piece of a shell and whilst in a sloping position, a Cannon Ball struck affiant on the Coat Collar cutting it into, and broke the skin slightly, but jarred affiant left arm at the shoulder and was thrown to the ground unconscious, and remained unconscious the most of that night and was taken off the field and was under treatment about two weeks, when affiant returned to his command but his left shoulder ~~was~~ ~~was~~ was so paralyzed that ever since he has been unable to raise his left arm up even with his shoulder or even half so high, also at ~~the~~ time whilst in the Cavalry since his fall whilst in a fight
