

A good angler respects our natural resources and wants to conserve them for others to enjoy. Always carry out what you brought in – never leave behind plastic containers or packaging. Fishing line is very dangerous to birds and other wildlife, tangling around legs or the mouth. Place old or tangled fishing line in one of the refuge's recycling bins.

Practice Conservation

A great variety of fish abound in the waters within Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge. Largemouth bass, bluegill, black and white crappie, channel catfish, and striped bass are the most sought after fish on the refuge. Other species caught include: rainbow trout, sunfish, white and yellow bass, yellow perch, bullhead, carp, bowfin, flathead catfish, warmouth and spotted sucker.

Catch and Release

Fish should never be wasted. If you catch a fish that is under the legal or minimum size or that you do not want to keep, release it quickly. If possible, keep the fish in the water and handle it carefully, pushing the hook back through the lip. If the fish has swallowed the hook, do not tear the hook out. Simply cut the line as close to the mouth as possible. You can revive a fish by gently moving it back and forth in the water so that water runs through its gills. When it begins to struggle and can swim normally, let it go.

Safety First!

- Fish with a companion who can offer help in an emergency.
- Always handle fishing tackle responsibly.
- Don't cast near other people, and always look around before making a cast.
- Wear a Cost Guard approved personal flotation device or life vest when wading or in a boat.
- Always dress for the weather and be prepared for sudden changes.

Take a Kid Fishing

National Fishing Week is celebrated annually at the refuge with a Kids Fishing Derby on a Saturday in early June. For details, call 618/997-3344.

U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service manages the National Wildlife Refuge System to help protect America's fish and wildlife heritage. Established in 1903 by President Theodore Roosevelt, the National Wildlife Refuge System now consists of more than 540 refuges encompassing nearly 100 million acres of lands and waters in all 50 states and most United States territories. National Wildlife Refuge Fishing Regulations

Fishing is one of the more popular visitor pastimes at Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge. More than 9,000 acres of water are impounded by three man-made reservoirs and several small impoundments. The three larger lakes, Crab Orchard, Little Grass, and Devils Kitchen, are available for fishing from a boat on a year-round basis with one exception. The eastern portion of Crab Orchard Lake is restricted from October 1 to March 14 to provide resting area for migrating waterfowl.

There are several areas developed around the waters edge with accessible fishing piers, walkways and fish attractors that provide excellent opportunities for bank fishing. For bank fishing opportunities see the map within this brochure.

To ensure your safety and enjoyment while visiting Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge, please take the time to become familiar with the following regulations. These regulations are designed to protect the sportsman as well as wildlife populations. The regulations below govern fishing on National Wildlife Refuges as set forth in Title 50, Code of Federal Regulation.

Sport fishing is permitted in accordance with all applicable State regulations and subject to the following special conditions:
