

What is MontcoWorks?

“MontcoWorks” is a one-stop resource tool supporting workforce development and human services in Montgomery County, PA.

It connects the many agencies and County offices offering workforce and human services with potential clients, other service providers, volunteers, employers, policy makers, students, and others who may be interested in the diverse and varied services available in the County.

From one user-friendly location on the internet, with links to numerous resources throughout the region and the nation, “MontcoWorks” helps area residents get to work more easily, armed with greater information and a support network – it works!

“MontcoWorks” is made available through a grant from the U.S. Department of Labor, the Montgomery County Department of Economic and Workforce Development, together with the Montgomery County Workforce Investment Board. This website identifies many of the social services available to County residents in support of their workforce development needs. This project -- uniting information on both workforce development and human services -- is one of the first such websites in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and one of the few in the United States.

“It’s great that families and consumers will now have this website as a place to turn for assistance and information. Human service staff can connect those in need to services available to assist them in our continuum of care in Montgomery County.”
Joanne Kline, Director of Montgomery County Aging and Adult Services
