LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

March 31, 1999

The President
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

I am pleased to submit the National Council on Disability's (NCD) Annual Report for Fiscal Year (FY) 1998, as required by Section 401(a)(9) of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended. In accordance with the Federal Reports Elimination and Sunset Act of 1995, NCD is submitting its final annual report on its activities and accomplishments. In the future, this information will be contained in NCD's National Disability Policy: A Progress Report, assessing the status of disability policy in the nation.

In a continuing effort to provide leadership in the development and evaluation of disability policy, NCD conducted a wide variety of activities in FY 1998 that promoted policies, programs, practices, and procedures that guarantee equal opportunity for all people with disabilities, regardless of the nature or severity of the disability.

NCD's highlights for FY 1998 included broadening the participation of youth and minorities with disabilities in the policy process; working to monitor and improve the enforcement of civil rights laws for people with disabilities; working to reorient public programs to support work; and bringing a disability perspective to generic policy discussions.

Though its efforts in these four broad areas, NCD was able to have a significant impact on the lives of people with disabilities and their families all over the world.

With your support, we will continue our efforts to ensure that people with disabilities will be afforded every opportunity to enter the mainstream of American life.

Sincerely,

Marca Bristo
Chairperson

(The same letter of transmittal was sent to the President Pro Tempore of the U.S. Senate and the Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives.)

Major Activities Summary—Fiscal Year 1998

The National Council on Disability (NCD) is an independent federal agency making recommendations to the President and Congress on disability policy. As the only agency in the Federal Government addressing the issues of all people with disabilities, regardless of type or severity, NCD will be aggressive and resolute until people with disabilities in every corner of the land no longer are distinguished by a disability label, but are known as students, workers, parents, neighbors, and friends.

When NCD brought together a diverse group of disability community leaders from around the country in 1996, a consensus emerged that U.S. public policies and programs needed to truly mirror the values of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). NCD captured the consensus recommendations of the participants in a report entitled Achieving Independence. Progress in carrying out those recommendations is measured each year in NCD's annual report, National Disability Policy: A Progress Report.

In its efforts to provide leadership in the development and evaluation of disability policy, NCD conducted a variety of activities in Fiscal Year (FY) 1998. Those activities promoted policies, programs, practices, and procedures that guarantee equal opportunity for all individuals with disabilities, regardless of the nature or severity of the disability. The activities also helped realize the promise of ADA by empowering people with disabilities to achieve economic self-sufficiency, independent living, and inclusion and integration into all aspects of society.

NCD's major activities for FY 1998 can be categorized under four areas:

- broadening participation of youth and minorities with disabilities in the policy process;
- working to monitor and improve the enforcement of civil rights laws for people with disabilities;
- working to reorient public programs to support work; and
- bringing a disability perspective to generic policy discussions.

Activities for FY 1998

NCD carried out numerous activities in FY 1998 that were devised to increase consumer input on public policy issues affecting the lives of people with disabilities and to provide the public with information on day-to-day NCD operations. Those activities are summarized below:

BROADENING PARTICIPATION OF YOUTH AND MINORITIES WITH DISABILITIES IN THE POLICY PROCESS

Second Annual Youth Leadership Development Conference

June 22–25, 1998, Washington, DC

With support from federal partner agencies, NCD conducted the second annual Youth Leadership Development Conference in Washington, DC, June 22–25, 1998. Sixty-three young people between the ages of 17 and 24, with various disabilities, and diverse backgrounds, and representing all geographic areas of the country, participated in this year's conference. Youth participants also had the opportunity to tour President Clinton's White House living quarters and pose for a group shot with the President. Members of Congress addressed the enthusiastic participants at a Capitol Hill luncheon, urging them to continue to fight for their rights and become leaders for the future. The conference provided a forum for teens and young adults with disabilities to learn about their legal rights, assistive technologies, and advocating for themselves and others in their local communities. Keynote speakers included Congressman Steny Hoyer (D-MD); Susan Daniels, deputy commissioner for Disability and Income Security Programs at the Social Security Administration (SSA); Marca Bristo, NCD chairperson; Judith E. Heumann, assistant secretary, Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services (OSERS) at the Department of Education; Robert Williams, deputy assistant secretary for the Office of Disability, Aging, and Long-Term Care Policy at the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS); Deidre Davis, deputy assistant secretary for Equal Employment and Civil Rights at the Department of State; and Justin Dart, disability advocate. The conference was conducted with the generous support of SSA, OSERS, Department of Education; the Office on Disability and Health, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, HHS; the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, HHS; and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, HHS. Other program supporters included Very Special Arts, the President's Committee on the Employment of People with Disabilities, United Cerebral Palsy Associations, and the Computer and Electronic Accommodations Program, Department of Defense.

Youth participant Melissa Santos of Chicago was selected to introduce Vice President Albert Gore, Jr., at a July 2 event announcing plans for a new edition of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial that depicts the former president with his disability, and to speak at the Department of Transportation when it announced its final regulations on the over-the-road bus regulations in September.

Hearing on Culturally Diverse Populations

August 5, 1998, San Francisco, CA

NCD conducted a public hearing in San Francisco that focused on meeting the unique needs of people with disabilities from diverse cultural populations. More than 50 witnesses spoke during the six-hour public hearing. Representatives from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the Social Security Administration were also on hand to answer questions.

Hearing on Children and Youth with Disabilities from Minority and Rural Communities

January 26, 1998, New Orleans, LA

NCD conducted a public hearing to learn about issues facing children and youth with disabilities and their families from minority and rural communities in Louisiana. In FY 1999, NCD issued its report, Grassroots Experiences with Government Programs and Disability Policy:

Proceedings from a Public Hearing in New Orleans, Louisiana, which contained recommendations capturing the compelling testimony.

Dialogue on Race

August 4, 1998, San Francisco, CA

Angela E. Oh, one of seven distinguished members of the President's Initiative on Race advisory board, participated in an NCD-sponsored Dialogue on Race with a diverse group of people with disabilities from the San Francisco Bay Area. The event was part of an ongoing effort to ensure that people with disabilities from culturally diverse backgrounds are part of the national dialogue on race.

National Conventions

July 11–16, 1998, Atlanta, GA

July 19–22, 1998, Philadelphia, PA

As part of NCD's efforts to reach out to minority, rural, and ethnic communities, NCD representatives participated in the 89th Annual NAACP Convention (Atlanta) and in the National Council of La Raza 1998 Annual Conference (Philadelphia).

WORKING TO MONITOR AND IMPROVE ENFORCEMENT OF CIVIL RIGHTS LAWS FOR PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

NCD was encouraged to monitor and evaluate federal enforcement efforts of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), and other civil rights laws when it convened a diverse group of more than 300 leaders from the disability community for a policy summit in 1996. In response, NCD initiated the Disability Civil Rights Monitoring Project. During FY 1998, NCD conducted research and interviews that laid the foundation for reports with recommendations to be released in FY 1999.

Commemoration of ADA Anniversary

July 29, 1998, Washington, DC

The President and disability leaders, including NCD's chair Marca Bristo, commemorated the eighth anniversary of the signing of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) at a White House meeting, where the President announced additional outreach efforts by federal enforcement agencies as well as measures designed to increase employment and health care options for people with disabilities. He directed the attorney general, the chairperson of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and the administrator of the Small Business Administration to expand public education about the requirements of ADA to employers, employees, and others whose rights may be affected, with special attention to small businesses and underserved populations. The President also directed the secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services to ensure that governors, state legislators, and state Medicaid directors work with consumer organizations to take advantage of a new Medicaid buy-in option the President signed into law last year, the option allows people with disabilities who return to work to purchase critically necessary Medicaid coverage as their earnings increase. President Clinton also announced the release of a letter from the Health Care Financing Administration to Medicaid directors, clarifying the fact that ADA obligates states to offer long-term services in the most integrated settings appropriate. In addition, the President announced his strong commitment to work with Senators James M. Jeffords (R-VT) and Edward M. Kennedy (D-MA) and other members of Congress to pass affordable, feasible legislation that helps people with disabilities maintain their health care coverage and return to work.

Over-the-Road Bus Announcement

September 24, 1998, Washington, DC

NCD representatives participated in the announcement of final regulations from the Department of Transportation (DOT) that will allow passengers with disabilities to use over-the-road buses and that will require bus lines such as Greyhound to purchase only accessible buses after the effective date of the rule and to be completely accessible by 2012. The action by DOT fulfills a key element of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. NCD commended DOT Secretary Rodney E. Slater for issuing this regulation that finally allows people with disabilities to take an accessible bus from one city to another, helping them live independently and participate fully in their communities. NCD Youth Leadership Development Conference participants Tracee Garner of Sterling, Virginia, and Melissa Santos of Chicago, Illinois, attended this event. Ms. Santos also spoke at the event.

Communication with the Secretary of Transportation

May 26, 1998, Washington, DC

NCD submitted comments to the Secretary of Transportation on over-the-road bus travel by people with disabilities. The new federal rules would require over-the-road buses to be fully accessible to passengers with disabilities as major bus lines replace their existing fleets with new models.

Motor Voter Study

August 1, 1998, Washington, DC

NCD announced a pilot study to assess compliance with National Voter Registration Act (motor voter law) provisions requiring disability service organizations to offer their clients information on registering to vote. Anecdotal evidence indicates that many service organizations have not been responsive to this provision. NCD's study will survey state vocational rehabilitation agencies to determine whether they are in compliance and how they have implemented the requirements. The study would become the basis for a broader study encompassing a larger cross-section of disability service organizations across the country. The study goals are to gather data on the level of awareness of the motor voter requirements among state agencies, the extent of compliance among the agencies, barriers to compliance, types of notification programs, methods of implementing notification programs, the effectiveness of various notification programs in increasing voter registration and participation, and the identification of best-practice models.

Press Briefing on First ADA Supreme Court Case

March 30, 1998, Washington, DC

As the agency that originally proposed the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), NCD participated in a press briefing on the first U.S. Supreme Court case (Bragdon v. Abbott) interpreting ADA. The briefing was sponsored by the HIV Law Policy Study of the Georgetown University Law Center. In June, the Court ruled that “HIV infection, even in the so-called asymptomatic phase, is an impairment which substantially limits the major life activity of reproduction.”

Memorandum of Understanding Signing

October 22, 1997, Washington, DC

NCD’s 1992 report, Wilderness Accessibility for People with Disabilities, included a key recommendation that the federal agencies responsible for wilderness management should better coordinate their policies and management practices regarding disability access and make them consistent with the requirements of federal nondiscrimination laws. On October 22, 1997, a memorandum of understanding was signed by the federal land management agencies to coordinate those policies.

Communication with the Department of Education

NCD submitted comments to the Department of Education on proposed regulations for implementing the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

Statement on Discipline of Students with Disabilities

May 15, 1998, Washington, DC

NCD released Discipline of Students with Disabilities: A Position Statement in response to efforts to amend the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act to give schools greater power to discipline all children, regardless of whether they have a disability, with the goals of ensuring safety and an “appropriate educational atmosphere” in the schools. NCD was concerned about the way this issue was characterized and the potential harm to children with disabilities that might have come from efforts to revisit this issue in the statute.

Department of State Meeting on Embassy Accessibility

December 3, 1997, Washington, DC

NCD representatives met with representatives of the Department of State to discuss access at U.S. embassies and other government-owned buildings overseas and in the United States. Representatives of the Department of Justice and the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board (Access Board) attended. Physical access to these overseas buildings is governed by the Architectural Barriers Act, which is administered by the Access Board. The task force will bring the power of government to attempt to increase the employment rate of people with disabilities to a rate closer to the general employment rate in the United States. The executive order stems from a recommendation developed at NCD's 1996 National Summit on Disability Policy by a diverse group of more than 300 disability community leaders. The task force, which will be chaired by Alexis Herman, Secretary of Labor, and vice chaired by Tony Coelho, chairperson of the President's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities, is charged with developing policy recommendations to reduce employment barriers for persons with disabilities. BRINGING A DISABILITY PERSPECTIVE TO GENERIC POLICY DISCUSSIONS

Progress Report on Disability Policy

October 31, 1997, Washington, DC

NCD published National Disability Policy: A Progress Report, which covers July 26, 1996, through October 31, 1997. Communication with the President's Initiative on Race

January 6, 1998, Washington, DC

NCD offered technical support and assistance to the President's Initiative on Race (PIR) to help foster a national dialogue on race that includes a discussion of the unique issues facing people with disabilities from culturally diverse backgrounds. NCD also coordinated a letter to PIR from NCD, the President's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities, and the Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services at the Department of Education. NCD followed up by meeting with the director of policy from PIR and other government representatives. In spite of these efforts, NCD was not satisfied with the extent to which PIR's final report to the President incorporated the issues facing minorities with disabilities.

The report was distributed to the research community.

Coordination of Federal Disability Efforts with Foreign Governments

May 20, 1998, Washington, DC

As ADA continues to serve as model civil rights legislation for countries throughout the world, NCD recommended that the Department of State and NCD convene a meeting of federal officials with disability responsibilities, in an effort to better coordinate their activities with foreign governments. The result would be a more coherent foreign policy relating to disability policy.

MISSION OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON DISABILITY

Overview and Purpose

NCD is an independent federal agency with 15 members appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

The overall purpose of NCD is to promote policies, programs, practices, and procedures that guarantee equal opportunity for all individuals with disabilities, regardless of the nature or severity of the disability; and to empower individuals with disabilities to achieve economic self-sufficiency, independent living, and inclusion and integration into all aspects of society.

Specific Duties

The current statutory mandate of NCD includes the following:

- Reviewing and evaluating, on a continuing basis, policies, programs, practices, and procedures concerning individuals with disabilities conducted or assisted by federal departments and agencies, including programs established or assisted under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, or under the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act; as well as all statutes and regulations pertaining to federal programs that assist such individuals with disabilities, in order to assess the effectiveness of such policies, programs, practices, procedures, statutes, and regulations in meeting the needs of individuals with disabilities.
- Reviewing and evaluating, on a continuing basis, new and emerging disability policy issues affecting individuals with disabilities at the federal, state, and local levels, and in the private sector, including the need for and coordination of adult services, access to personal assistance services, school reform efforts and the impact of such efforts on individuals with disabilities, access to health care, and policies that operate as disincentives for individuals to seek and retain employment.

- Making recommendations to the President, Congress, the Secretary of Education, the Director of the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research, and other officials of federal agencies, respecting ways to better promote equal opportunity, economic self-sufficiency, independent living, and inclusion and integration into all aspects of society for Americans with disabilities.
- Providing Congress, on a continuing basis, advice, recommendations, legislative proposals, and any additional information that NCD or Congress deems appropriate.
- Gathering information about the implementation, effectiveness, and impact of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq.).
- Advising the President, Congress, the Commissioner of the Rehabilitation Services Administration, the Assistant Secretary for Special Education and Rehabilitative Services within the Department of Education, and the Director of the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research on the development of the programs to be carried out under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended.
- Providing advice to the Commissioner with respect to the policies and conduct of the Rehabilitation Services Administration.
- Making recommendations to the Director of the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research on ways to improve research, service, administration, and the collection, dissemination, and implementation of research findings affecting persons with disabilities.

- Providing advice regarding priorities for the activities of the Interagency Disability Coordinating Council and reviewing the recommendations of this Council for legislative and administrative changes to ensure that such recommendations are consistent with the purposes of NCD to promote the full integration, independence, and productivity of individuals with disabilities.
- Preparing and submitting to the President and Congress an annual report titled National Disability Policy: A Progress Report.

International

In 1995, NCD was designated by the Department of State to be the official contact point with the U.S. government for disability issues. Specifically, NCD interacts with the special rapporteur of the United Nations Commission for Social Development on disability matters.

Consumers Served and Current Activities

While many government agencies deal with issues and programs affecting people with disabilities, NCD is the only federal agency charged with addressing, analyzing, and making recommendations on issues of public policy that affect people with disabilities regardless of age, disability type, perceived employment potential, economic need, specific functional ability, status as a veteran, or other individual circumstance. NCD recognizes its unique opportunity to facilitate independent living, community integration, and employment opportunities for people with disabilities by ensuring an informed and coordinated approach to addressing the concerns of persons with disabilities and eliminating barriers to their active participation in community and family life.

NCD plays a major role in developing disability policy in America. In fact, it was NCD that originally proposed what eventually became the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). NCD's present list of key issues includes improving personal assistance services, promoting health care reform, including students with disabilities in high-quality programs in typical neighborhood schools, promoting equal employment and community housing opportunities, monitoring the implementation of ADA, improving assistive technology, and ensuring that persons with disabilities who are members of minority groups fully participate in society.

Statutory History

NCD was initially established in 1978 as an advisory board within the Department of Education (Public Law 95-602). The Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1984 (Public Law 98-221) transformed NCD into an independent agency.
