Please do not change the "made in the u.s.a." policy. There are a lot of people like myself, who try to buy American when possible to keep America working. If you change the policy, companies, especially foreign, will take advantage of this and make a joke out of the made in u.s.a. labeling. They'll be able to claim made in the u.s., American made, and crafted with pride in America without it actually being true. Companies know that there are a lot of consumers that buy American, and are persuaded by the made in u.s.a. labels. Why give companies the chance to abuse something that has done a good thing for fifty years? Why give them a chance to label something made in the u.s.a. when it's not?

If it's not made in America, then it shouldn't be labeled made in the u.s.a.

Don't fix what isn't broken.

Thank you
