Re: TSR Prerecorded Call Prohibition and Call Abandonment Standard
Modification, Project No. R411001

To Whom it May Concern:

As a consumer, I like being able to get pre-recorded phone calls with reminders to purchase prescription refills, or offers on new goods or services from the places I shop. What I don't like is getting calls from companies with which I don't have a relationship, or having my number sold to some directory. You should focus on that problem, instead of making it more difficult or even impossible for me to continue to enjoy valuable phone services.

I am opposed to the FTC's proposal that would require written authorization to receive pre-recorded telemarketing calls from the businesses or charities with which I have an Established Business Relationship (EBR). I believe the burden this would place on them would be so great that they would have to discontinue these voice services that are a benefit to consumers like me.

I would ask the Commission to either adopt the EBR exception contained in the TCPA that creates an exception for pre-recorded sales calls sent by companies that have an EBR with the person they are calling or continue beyond January 2, 2007 to forbear from enforcement actions against businesses that deliver pre-recorded sales messages to customers with whom there is an EBR so other options can be considered.

Sincerely,

Chris Brunn
