OJJDP National Training and Technical Assistance Center

Practitioners in the field of juvenile justice and delinquency prevention face enormous challenges as they change existing practices to improve outcomes. Because quality training and technical assistance (T&TA) can facilitate such transitions, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) established the National Training and Technical Assistance Center (NTTAC) in 1995. Located in Fairfax, VA, the Center:

- ◆ Promotes best practices in juvenile justice training and technical assistance.
- ◆ Enhances the ability of OJJDP's T&TA network to meet the needs of the juvenile justice field.
- ◆ Fosters shared teaching and learning among OJJDP's T&TA grantees and contractors.

NTTAC functions as a conduit for sharing information and as a vehicle for promoting continuous system improvement. NTTAC helps T&TA providers enhance their capabilities and assists practitioners in locating quality T&TA.

With a growing portfolio of products and services, NTTAC provides both a structure and a strategy for developing and applying knowledge about critical juvenile justice issues. The Center collaborates with approximately 70 OJJDP T&TA providers. Through NTTAC, the providers can locate experts, publications, and products on state-of-the-art approaches for designing and delivering T&TA.

Products and Services

NTTAC products, which include newsletters, Fact Sheets, Bulletins, and Web sites, help providers stay current on the latest trends, technology, and initiatives in T&TA.

One key resource is the OJJDP Training and Technical Assistance Resource Catalog, which NTTAC updates and publishes annually. The catalog contains comprehensive information about more than 100 OJJDP-sponsored T&TA projects, including their scope, services, and contact information.

NTTAC has also published Training, Technical Assistance, and Evaluation Protocols. This primer discusses best practices in T&TA and suggests strategies for evaluating those practices. Both the published protocols and catalog are available free from NTTAC.

In addition to these resources, NTTAC also:

- ◆ Conducts ongoing needs assessments of the juvenile justice field.
- ◆ Supports efforts to evaluate T&TA delivery.
- ◆ Generates searchable electronic directories of T&TA providers and training events.
- ◆ Distributes customized packages of T&TA materials.
- ◆ Identifies and assesses T&TA resources in the field.
- ◆ Collects and provides access to the best T&TA materials available.
- ◆ Develops new T&TA materials to meet needs of juvenile justice practitioners.

NTTAC's Services Are Useful To:

- ◆ Juvenile justice practitioners.
- ◆ Policymakers.
- ◆ Judges.
- ◆ Law enforcement officials.
- ◆ Corrections officials.
- ◆ School personnel.
- ◆ State agency staff.
- ◆ Youth workers.

- ◆ Sponsors networking sessions and online discussion groups.
- ◆ Creates and disseminates model T&TA protocols and guides.

NTTAC also sponsors an annual conference, bringing providers and practitioners together to network, strengthen skills, and share ideas.

These NTTAC activities help OJJDP to promote its T&TA resources, ensure that its many constituencies have convenient access to appropriate T&TA, and enhance the quality of the T&TA services that the Office supports.

Serving as a resource for practitioners and providers, and as a link between them, NTTAC plays a key role in the development and application of T&TA in the juvenile justice and delinquency prevention field.

Accessing Resources

NTTAC's products and services are easily accessible. Users may call a toll-free number (800-830-4031) to speak with a resource coordinator about their needs. The NTTAC Web site allows users to access NTTAC's resources 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Through the Web site, users can search directories of T&TA providers, learn about upcoming training events, and locate

T&TA resource materials. The site also provides links to organizations and individuals with expertise in particular areas of the juvenile justice field.
