

The Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, The Library Company of Philadelphia and
The National Archives at Philadelphia with its collaborating partners

Cordially invite you to attend the dedication of an official
State Historical Marker Commemorating

The Liberation of Jane Johnson¹

An enslaved woman who on July 18, 1855, with her two sons, escaped her Southern master aided by Philadelphia abolitionists

Saturday, July 18, 2009
4:00 p.m.
Reception to follow

Image: "Rescue of Jane Johnson and Her Children," from William Still, The Underground Railroad (Philadelphia, 1872)

Please join us near the entrance to the Independence Seaport Museum
Penn's Landing
211 South Columbus Blvd. and Walnut St.
Philadelphia, PA 19106

RSVP acceptances only to lpropst@librarycompany.org, or 215-546-3181

¹ United States v. Passmore Williamson, 1855, a defining court case in the records of the National Archives at Philadelphia.