

The largest occupations within the employment services industry (which contains temporary help and professional employer organizations) were production occupations.

FIGURE 21

- Other large occupations include administrative support and transportation and material moving occupations.
- With one exception, wages for all these employment services occupations are lower than wages for their counterparts in other industries.
- Registered nurses in employment services were paid higher than the average for the occupation.

Largest occupations in the employment services industry, with hourly mean wages, May 2007

