

I concur that consumer's should receive a copy of the same credit report that resulted in adverse action, including the FICO score!

It is ludicrous that the credit data is a result of the consumer activity, yet trying to access the information, much less change incorrect data is a formidable process! Consumer's should have the option to lock down their credit files and only release information with specific log in criteria.