

Charting the U.S. labor market in 2006

- This report includes graphs and text describing the U.S. labor market in 2006. Highlights include information about educational attainment, race and Hispanic ethnicity, women, and families.
- These data were compiled from several statistical programs of the Bureau of Labor Statistics and are presented together to give an overview of the employment and unemployment situation for the nation that presents both recent data and historical trends over time.

Table of contents

- Section 1. Major indicators
- Section 2. Education
- Section 3. Employment relationships
- Section 4. Race and Hispanic ethnicity
- Section 5. Women
- Section 6. Families