Mortgage Fraud SARs Connect to Other Crimes

The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) has released a report that shows individuals reported for suspected mortgage loan fraud may also be involved in other financial crimes such as check fraud, money laundering, stock manipulation, structuring to avoid currency transaction reporting requirements and others. From depository institution Suspicious Activity Reports (SARs), FinCEN identified approximately 156,000 mortgage fraud subjects, and found that 2,360 were reported for suspicious activity in 3,680 of the other SAR types. The study, entitled Mortgage Loan Fraud Connections with Other Financial Crime, is FinCEN's fourth mortgage loan fraud study released since November 2006.

FinCEN also announced a new section of its Web site (www.fincen.gov.) that will focus on FinCEN's analysis of mortgage loan fraud.

FTC Redrafting Non-Federally Insured Disclosures

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is taking comments until June 5 on proposed rule revisions implementing 2006 requirements for disclosures by non-federally insured credit unions.

The key provisions out for comment:

- The rule would require a clear, conspicuous notice of the institution's non-federally insured status in all periodic statements of account. The disclosure also includes each signature card, passbook, certificate of deposit or share certificate. This notice would state that if the institution fails, the federal government will not guarantee that depositors get their money back.
- Disclosures must be made clearly and conspicuously at each station or window where deposits are normally received, the institution's principal place of business and branches where it accepts deposits or opens accounts, and on its main Internet page.
- Notices are not required on any sign, document or other item that identifies the institution but does not include information about its products or services or information otherwise promoting the institution.

The proposal permits credit unions to seek acknowledgements from new members by mail in the case of a merger or conversion, or from longtime members who had not received such disclosures prior to the law's enactment.

Understatement of Loan Loss Exposure

As loan delinquency and losses have increased during the current economic downturn, our examinations have disclosed an increased number of credit unions that have not funded the Allowance for Loan and Lease Losses (ALLL) in accordance with their internal analysis of the loss exposure. The understatement of the ALLL and related loan loss expense is frequently the result of budgetary or other earnings considerations. Commission Rule 91.718 provides that any necessary adjustment to the Allowance for Loan and Lease Losses (ALLL) must be made prior to the end of each calendar quarter in accordance with a clearly established internal methodology. Credit unions should be aware that any intentional failure to fund the ALLL in a timely manner may be considered an effort to falsify the credit union's accounting records. As provided by Section 122.254 of the Finance Code, a person who knowingly and with the intent to deceive makes a false accounting entry has committed a criminal offense.

5300 Call Reports

The 5300 Call Reports for the quarter ending March 31, 2009, were mailed to each credit union on March 31st and are due on or before April 20, 2009. Please note that all errors must be resolved before a transmission file can be created. If you run into problems, please call Isabel Velasquez as soon as possible prior to the due date.

New Complaint Notification Requirements

Credit unions must comply with the new complaint notification requirements adopted by the Commission in 7 TAC §91.121. The new rule, which replaces 7 TAC §97.106, requires credit unions to give members more information on how they can file a complaint against a credit union. The rule sets out the text of the notice that all credit unions must display in their offices and provides that credit unions must give the notice to their members with each privacy notice. The rule also requires a credit union that maintains a website to include the notice or a link to the notice in a conspicuous place on the website. Copies of the new and amended rules adopted by the Commission at its February meeting were mailed to all credit unions on March 27, 2009.
