State housing agency awards $500,000 to help city of Dayton recover from 2007 storm

(AUSTIN) — Recognizing the importance of preserving single family housing in rural Texas, the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs (TDHCA) has announced a major funding award to repair or rebuild storm damaged homes in Dayton, helping to restore life to normal for several area homeowners. The funds will help allow eligible households to make the necessary repairs and keep their home while providing much-needed economic benefits to the local construction industry.

TDHCA awarded the city of Dayton $500,000 in disaster recovery funds through a portion of the Department's HOME Investment Partnerships (HOME) Program designed to repair or replace seven homes owned and lived in by income eligible Texans. Through this partnership between state and city officials, the funds will help repair or rebuild an estimated seven area homes.

"Preserving rural housing stock is important to TDHCA, particularly after a natural disaster," said Michael Gerber, Executive Director of TDHCA. "There are typically fewer housing choices in rural communities, and these home repair funds can help them remain viable. Repairing and rebuilding homes will also help generate local construction jobs and increase area employment opportunities. We recognize that these funds won't help make the city whole again, but they should go a long ways towards helping restore the damage caused by these storms."

Tornadoes and torrential rains struck Liberty County in June 2007, resulting in severe wind damage and flooding in various portions of the county. The region received a federal disaster declaration in August of that year, making federal funds available to local officials. Once all available federal funds were expended, officials with the city of Dayton were then eligible to apply for HOME Program funds through TDHCA.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development is the funding source for the HOME Program, and funds are designed to assist households at or below 80 percent of the area median family income. For Dayton and Liberty County, this equals an annual income of $48,900 for a family for four.

Eligible applicants include qualifying units of local government, public housing authorities, Community Housing Development Organizations and other nonprofit groups, and qualifying for-profit organizations.
