State housing agency, Ellis Community Resources helping area low income tenants secure decent housing

(AUSTIN) — Realizing that helping low income rural Texans secure decent affordable rental housing is the first step to setting them on the path toward self-sufficiency, the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs (TDHCA) has announced a major funding award to a local nonprofit organization serving Comal County to help eligible individuals obtain housing while working toward financial and personal independence.

TDHCA awarded $300,000 in rental assistance funds to New Braunfels-based Ellis Community Resources to help an estimated 28 households with their monthly rent payments.

“Finding a decent, affordable place to call home can be an enormous challenge for rural Texans,” said TDHCA Executive Director Michael Gerber. “Incomes tend to be lower in rural communities, and residents typically have fewer rental housing choices. These funds will not only make an immediate impact on the lives of these tenants, they have the potential to create the long-term benefits of self-reliance.”

Ellis Community Resources will use the award to help subsidize rents and make security and utility deposits for eligible low income households, ensuring they can find decent, affordable rental housing. The assistance is available for up to 24 months. In return, tenants must participate in a self-sufficiency program with the goal of achieving eventual financial independence.

This award was made through TDHCA’s HOME Investment Partnerships (HOME) Program, which is funded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. HOME funds are designed to assist households at or below 80 percent of the area median family income, which for Comal County is equal to an annual income of $43,750 for a family of four.
