Lake Whitney State Park

Lake Whitney State Park lies on the eastern shores of Lake Whitney, the state's fourth largest reservoir. Besides offering opportunities for boating and skiing, the lake is known for its excellent and varied fishing. In fact, a previous state record for smallmouth bass was hooked in Lake Whitney. White-tailed deer, squirrels, raccoons, armadillos and opossums roam through the park. In the spring, bluebonnets and Indian paintbrushes blanket the park's roadsides with color.

Camping: campsites with water only, and water and electricity. Screened shelters.

Group facilities: group camp with eight screened shelters (capacity eight) per shelter and dining hall. Sponsored youth group area. Recreation hall with kitchen, for day or night use.

Picnicking: day-use area with tables and grills.

Swimming: designated swimming area (no lifeguard).

Boating: boat ramp. Also skiing and sailing.
