Paige Harrison prepared the section on prisoners. Tracy L. Snell prepared the section on capital punishment. Christopher J. Mumola prepared the section on military corrections. Ida Hines created the ascii file and Priscilla Middleton supervised the electronic production for the BJS website.

Lisa McNelis, assisted by Henrietta Herrin, Martha Greene, and Duane Cavanaugh, under the supervision of Stephanie Brown, Governments Division of the U.S. Census Bureau, collected and processed the Annual Survey of Jails.

Elizabeth K. Griffin collected and processed the data on prisoners and Patricia A. Clark collected the data on capital punishment, under the supervision of Gertrude B. Odom and Marilyn M. Monahan, Demographic Surveys Division, U.S. Census Bureau.

a/Number jail inmates in custody.

b/Based on the average daily population for the year ending June 30.

The average daily population is the sum of the number of inmates in jail each day for a year, divided by the number of days in the year.

c/Rated capacity is the number of beds or inmates assigned by a rating official to facilities within each jurisdiction.

d/The number of inmates divided by the rated capacity multiplied by 100.

e/The figure figures for rated capacity in Sacramento county have been updated from the 1997 Annual Survey of Jails. Therefore, the total figures for the 1997 rated capacity may differ from previously published totals.

Chapter 2: Jails Methodology

Annual Survey of Jails (ASJ)

In each year between the full censuses, a survey of jails is conducted to estimate baseline characteristics of the Nation's jails and the inmates housed in these jails. The 1998 Annual Survey of Jails is the 14th such survey in a series begun in 1982. The reference date for the 1998 survey was June 30.

Based on information from the 1993 Census of Jails, a sample of jail jurisdictions was selected for the 1994-1998 surveys. A jurisdiction is a county (parish in Louisiana) or municipal government that administers one or more local jails. The sample included all jails in 795 selected jail jurisdictions and 25 multijurisdiction jails. A multijurisdiction jail is one in which two or more jurisdictions have a formal agreement to operate the facility.

In the drawing of the sample, jail jurisdictions were first stratified into two groups: single-jurisdiction jails and multijurisdiction jails. All of the multijurisdiction jails were included in the survey. The remaining jurisdictions were then further stratified into two groups: jurisdictions with jails authorized to hold juveniles and jurisdictions with jails holding adults only. Jurisdictions were then selected based on the average daily population in the 1993 census.

All jails in 204 jurisdictions were automatically included if in 1993 the jurisdiction held juveniles and had an average daily population of 250 or more inmates or if it held only adults and had an average population of 500 or more. The other jurisdictions (591) were then selected based on stratified probability sampling.

Data were obtained by mailed questionnaires. After follow-up phone calls to nonrespondents, the response rate for the survey was 100%.

Sampling error

Survey estimates have an associated sampling error because not all jurisdictions were contacted for the survey. Estimates based on the sample survey may differ somewhat from the results of conducting a complete census.

Different samples could yield somewhat different results. Standard error is a measure of the variation among the estimates from all possible samples, stating the precision with which an estimate from a particular sample approximates the average of all possible samples. The estimated relative sampling error for the number of persons under the jurisdiction of jail authorities of 664,847 on June 30, 1998, was 0.87%; for persons held in custody of jail authorities of 592,462, 0.67%. (See tables 2.9 and 2.10.)

Measuring confinement status

For the first time, in 1995 the ASJ obtained separate counts of the total number of offenders under jail supervision, those held in jail facilities, and those supervised outside jail facilities. Previous surveys and censuses included a small but unknown number of offenders under community supervision. To estimate the percentage change from 1994 to 1995 in the jail population, the 1995 survey included a count of inmates held at midyear 1994.

In the 1996 survey, the number of persons supervised outside a jail facility included for the first time persons under drug, alcohol, mental health, or other medical treatment. Comparisons with the 1995 estimates should exclude these persons.

Juveniles

State statutes and judicial practices allow juveniles to be incarcerated in adult jails under a variety of circumstances. Because of the differing statutes and practices, however, accurate and comparable data on juveniles are difficult to collect.

Beginning in 1994 the ASJ provided estimates of the total number of jail inmates under age 18, the number held as adults, and the number held as juveniles. New sampling procedures were also introduced in 1994 to minimize the standard errors of these estimates. By stratifying jurisdictions based on the authority to house juveniles, the precision of the juvenile counts was improved.

Chapter 3: Probation

Explanatory notes

Because many States update their population counts, the January 1, 1998, numbers may differ from those previously published for December 31, 1997.

Federal

Data for the Federal system are from the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts as provided to the BJS Federal Justice Statistics Program. Definitional differences exist between probation data reported here and in other BJS data series.

“Other” entries include probationers whose cases were reopened statistically (table 3.5).

“Other” discharges include probationers for which specific codes were not assigned. Includes such cases as closings at chief’s discretion, closings because of revocation in another case, and withdrawing of warrants after expiration (table 3.6).

“Asian” includes an unspecified number of “Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander” probationers (table 3.8).

“Other” offense type includes petty offenses (table 3.9).

Although no formal intensive supervision program exists at the national level, some individual probation offices that use electronic monitoring may regard such a program to be an intensive supervision program (table 3.10).

Alabama

Alabama has 3 reporting agencies: 1 State and 2 local. Alabama’s state agency, which represents 76% of all Alabama’s probationers, estimated all data. One local agency did not provide data. The December 31, 1997 population count was used as an estimate of the January 1, 1998 and December 31, 1998 population counts.

“Other” offense type includes driving under the influence of alcohol cases (table 3.9).

Detailed data are estimated for intensive supervision and electronic monitoring (table 3.10).

A total of 15 additional local agencies, created through the growth and fragmentation of probation agencies in Washington, were included in the 1998 survey. Inclusion of these agencies added 14,596 persons to the January 1, 1998 probation population, and 15,960 to the December 31, 1998 probation population. In addition, one office with 625 probationers on December 31, 1997 has been deleted because the probation department had been eliminated.

Missing local agency data were imputed based on the ratio of entries to the January 1, 1998 population among local agencies in Washington which were able to provide data. Exits were imputed from the requirement that beginning population, plus entries, minus exits, must equal the end of year population.

The probation population on December 31, 1998 includes an additional 2,835 interstate compact cases supervised for other jurisdictions.

Approximately 30% of the local agencies in Washington estimated all data. In addition, approximately 16% of the local agencies in Washington estimated one or more characteristics of the total population on December 31, 1998.

“Other” probation status includes 199 probationers with a deferred sentence (table 3.3).

“Other” supervision status includes 1,086 probationers with a violation warrant (table 3.4).

Excludes 10,795 Louisiana inmates at yearend 1997 and 13,211 inmates at yearend 1998 held in local jails as a result of a partnership with local authorities. Unlisted jurisdictions either had combined jail-prison systems or did not report prisoners held in local jails. Arizona, Michigan, and New York did not include inmates housed in local jails because of crowding in their jurisdiction count; however, the percentage of jurisdiction population was calculated for all persons serving sentences to incarceration in State prison or in jail. /Not reported.

*Michigan is unable to distinguish the gender of prison inmates housed in jails; therefore, all inmates are reported under males.

Chapter 5: Prisoners

Explanatory notes

Federal prisons

Movement data were provided but, when added to the population for January 1, 1998, minus the releases, do not equal population on December 31, 1998.

Other releases and admissions: Include miscellaneous and unknown admission types.

Inmates with a year or less sentence: Include inmates whose sentence length is unknown.

Other deaths: All deaths are reported in the "Unspecified cause" category because they are unable to breakdown categories by gender. The death totals for each category are: Executions- 0; Illness/natural causes- 186; AIDS- 19; Suicides- 12; Accidental injury to self- 3; Death caused by another person- 3; Other deaths- 0.

Sentencing information, partially suspended sentences: Populations and movements of inmates given partially suspended sentences (part served in prison, part under probation) are included with the "Inmates with over 1 year maximum sentence" only if the prison portion of the sentence exceeds one year. Such populations are excluded from the state jurisdiction count, but are included in published population counts and rates for local jails and correctional institutions. There are approximately 6,200 male inmates in the county system serving a sentence of over 1 year.

Admissions, releases, and population data: Starting in the 1998 report year, Missouri changed the classification of the Electronic Monitoring Program (EMP) and the Residential Treatment Facility (RTF). The new computer system does not allow analysis of EMP and RTF (inmates are considered to be under Parole Board supervision). Previously a certain number of offenders in EMP and RTF were classified as state prison inmates and were included in the NPS-1 report, therefore the data for 1997 and 1998 are not comparable.

Other conditional releases violators returned, with and without new sentences: Include admissions from Electronic Monitoring Program (EMP) and Residential Treatment Facility (RTF).

Chapter 6: Parole

Explanatory notes

Because many jurisdictions update their population counts, the January 1, 1998, numbers may differ from those previously published for December 31, 1997.

Federal

Data for the Federal system are from the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts as provided to the BJS Federal Justice Statistics Program. Parole includes supervised release, parole, military parole, special parole, and mandatory release. Definitional differences exist between parole reported here and in other BJS data series.

“Other” discharges include cases for which specific codes were not assigned. Includes such cases as closings at chief’s discretion, closings because of revocation in another case, and withdrawing of warrants after expiration (table 6.5).

“Asian” includes an unspecified number of “Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander” parolees (table 6.7).

Although no formal intensive supervision program exists at the national level, some individual parole offices that use electronic monitoring may regard such a program to be an intensive supervision program (table 6.9).

Alabama

Alabama has two reporting agencies: One State and one local. Alabama’s State agency estimated all data.

Alaska

All data are estimated.

Arizona

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 440 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

“Other” entries include 245 interstate compact cases accepted in Arizona (table 6.4).

The intensive supervision and electronic monitoring programs are combined. The 97 parolees in an intensive supervision program are also on electronic monitoring (table 6.9).

Arkansas

All data are estimated.

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 313 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

“Unknown or not reported” race includes Hispanic parolees of unknown race (table 6.7).

California

California has two reporting agencies: Department of Corrections and the California Youth Authority (CYA). California’s Youth Authority estimated race and Hispanic origin.

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 4,230 civil narcotic addict outpatients and interstate compact cases supervised for other States by California’s State agency.

California State data excludes 19,883 absconders (table 6.3).

CYA’s “returned to prison or jail, other” includes parolees committed to other jurisdictions. “Other unsuccessful” discharges include parolees placed on probation or sentenced to jail as a result of a new offense. “Other” discharges include parolees released on a pending court action and others. (table 6.5).

CYA’s “unknown or not reported” race includes an unspecified number of Hispanic parolees and unknowns (table 6.7).

“Mandatory” release from prison includes a small number of life imprisonment parolees that received a discretionary release from prison (table 6.10).

Colorado

Growth in the parole population may have been the result of a State law which mandates a period of parole supervision for all persons sentenced to prison for crimes committed on or after July 1, 1993.

“Total” entries include 249 interstate compact cases supervised for other States (table 6.4).

“Unknown or not reported” race includes 1,598 Hispanics of unknown race (table 6.7).

Intensive supervision and electronic monitoring are a combined program. An unknown number of the 529 parolees in an intensive supervision program are also on electronic monitoring (table 6.9).

“Other” release type includes interstate compact cases supervised for other States (table 6.10).

Connecticut

“Unknown or not reported” race includes 314 Hispanic parolees of unknown race (table 6.7).

Delaware

Entries were imputed from the requirement that the beginning of year population, plus entries, minus exits, must equal the end of year population.

“Total” entries are estimated (table 6.4).

“Unknown or not reported” race includes 21 Hispanic probationers of unknown race (table 6.7).

District of Columbia

“Total” entries are estimated. “Other” includes grants to consecutive sentences, detainers, and parolees classified under administrative status (table 6.4).

“Returned to prison or jail, other” includes parolees classified under warrant executed status (table 6.5).

Florida

“Successful completion” includes 189 parolees who were pardoned, deported, or being held by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (table 6.5).

Georgia

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 741 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

“Total” entries and exits include an unspecified number of interstate compact cases which Georgia supervises for other States (tables 6.4 and 6.5).

Georgia reported race in two classifications, “White” and “non-White,” and included “non-White” under “Black/African American” (table 6.7).

The intensive supervision program and the electronic monitoring program cannot be separated. The 790 parolees in electronic monitoring program are included in the 856 involved in an intensive supervision program (table 6.9).

Hawaii

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 30 interstate compact cases supervised for another State.

Illinois

“Other” entries include transfers from other States and others (table 6.4).

“Other” discharges include transfers (not discharged) to the Apprehension Unit and others (table 6.5).

Illinois Department of Corrections also had 349 parolees in a Day Reporting Center and 426 in a Community Drug Intervention Program on December 31, 1998 (table 6.9).

“Other” release type includes parolees identified as “Sexually Dangerous Persons” (table 6.10).

Indiana

Data exclude 400 absconders and 300 parolees supervised out-of-State (table 6.3).

“Other” entries include transfers from other States (table 6.4).

“Other” release type includes releases from other States (table 6.10).

Iowa

“Unknown or not reported” race includes 70 Hispanic parolees of unknown race (table 6.7).

Kansas

Data exclude 614 absconders (table 6.3).

The Kansas Sentencing Guidelines Act with its determinate sentencing structure became effective July 1, 1993. Previously, Kansas had indeterminate sentencing. As a result, a number of entries and exits to parole (reported in these tables) involve offenders with “guidelines” or “new law” sentences (which have determinate periods of post-incarceration supervision). For purposes of these tables, it is not feasible to differentiate movements of “old law” versus “new law” offenders. For example, releases to post-incarceration supervision (for a determinate period under new law) are included with the regular parole releases (for an indeterminate period under old law) in “discretionary release from prison” (table 6.4). Both of these groups of releases are under the same type of post-incarceration supervision by parole officers and are subject to return to prison, as always, for violation of the conditions of release.

“Other” entries include releases from pre-revocation and administrative hold (table 6.4).

“Returned to prison or jail, other” includes 110 parolees on pre-revocation confinement, 65 parolees on administrative hold, and one parolee released to a Community Corrections program. “Other unsuccessful” discharges include 109 cases closed by an issued warrant. “Other” discharges include 158 cases involving out-of-State offenders and others (table 6.5).

“Asian” includes an unknown number of “Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander” parolees (table 6.7).

Maximum sentence to incarceration of “more than a year” includes a relatively small but undetermined number for whom the incarceration portion of the sentence is “a year or less”; Kansas considers all of these to be felons (table 6.8).

Louisiana

“Other” entries include parolees who were returned after absconding (table 6.4).

“Other” discharges include parolees whose court order sentences were vacated (table 6.5).

Maine

Total population on December 31, 1998, is estimated.

Maryland

As a result of a change in State law in May 1997, prisoners sentenced to a period of incarceration of a year or less are now classified as having an “expired sentence” and are no longer placed under the supervision of the Division of Parole and Probation. This has accounted for decreases in both the number of entries to post-prison supervision by mandatory release and in the number of successful discharges (such persons generally had short periods of post-prison supervision) during 1997 and 1998 (tables 6.4 and 6.5).

“Other” supervision status includes parolees delinquent in custody (table 6.3).

Massachusetts

“Unknown or not reported” race includes an unspecified number of Hispanic parolees and other parolees of unknown race (table 6.7).

Michigan

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 755 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

Minnesota

“Other” supervision status includes offenders held in local jails for absconding and issuance of a warrant, or held on a detainer or pre-trial status for a new offense (table 6.3).

“Other” entries include offenders released to intensive supervision programs and on conditional medical release (table 6.4).

“Unknown or not reported” race includes Asian parolees, and Hispanic parolees of unknown race (table 6.7).

Mississippi

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 523 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

Data exclude 781 parolees on inactive supervision, 270 parolees supervised out-of-State, and two absconders (table 6.3).

Missouri

All data are estimated.

Montana

All data are estimated.

Imputation of entries was based on the ratio of 1997 entries to the January 1, 1997 population in Montana. Exits were imputed from the requirement that the beginning of year population, plus entries, minus exits, must equal the end of year population.

Nebraska

“Other” supervision status includes detainees (table 6.3).

Nevada

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 336 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

“Total” entries are estimated (table 6.4).

“Successful completion” includes an unspecified number of “deaths.” “Other unsuccessful” discharges include parolees discharged after the issuance of a warrant (table 6.5).

New Hampshire

“Other” supervision status includes parolees on administrative home confinement (table 6.3).

“Other” release type includes parolees released from administrative home confinement (table 6.10).

New Jersey

“Total” entries are estimated (table 6.4).

“Total” exits are estimated (table 6.5).

New Mexico

Data include parolees in the Community Corrections Program, a therapeutic program with a high needs caseloads.

“Other” discharges include “Special Actions” (table 6.5).

North Carolina

The active population includes 327 post-release offenders. Post-release supervision is defined by North Carolina as a reintegrative program for serious offenders who have served extensive prison terms. This form of supervision was created by the Structured Sentencing Act of 1993 to replace parole supervision for offenders who had served long prison sentences and needed assistance in re-adjusting to life outside of the correctional institution (table 6.3).

North Dakota

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 41 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

Oklahoma

Total population on December 31, 1998, is estimated.

“Other” supervision status includes nine parolees awaiting transfer to incarceration (table 6.3).

“Total” exits are estimated (table 6.5).

Oregon

“Other” entries include 219 transitional leave parolees (table 6.4).

“Successful completion” discharges include eight dismissals. “Other” discharges include an inmate appeal (table 6.5).

“Unknown or not reported” race includes 1,882 Hispanic parolees of unknown race (table 6.7).

Pennsylvania

“Total” entries are estimated (table 6.4).

“Total” exits are estimated (table 6.5).

“Unknown or not reported” race includes 4,177 Hispanic probationers of unknown race.

“American Indian/Alaska Native” and “Asian” include State data only (table 6.7).

Data for the intensive supervision and electronic monitoring programs include county data only. The State operated an intensive supervision and electronic monitoring program but an unknown number of probationers were involved in both programs (table 6.9).

Release type of “mandatory release from prison” includes State data only (table 6.10).

Rhode Island

Supervised “out-of-State” includes four parolees serving out-of-State sentences. “Other” supervision status includes 40 persons supervised by U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, 22 inmates held in the Rhode Island Adult Correctional Institution on detention warrants issued by the parole board, six persons serving a U.S. sentence, one person held on a U.S. detention warrant, and one person in the Federal Witness Program (table 6.3).

“Reinstatement” includes persons placed on “re-parole” after revocation because either (a) there were no new sentences or (b) all new sentences were six months or less to serve (table 6.4).

“Returned to prison or jail, other” includes parolees who completed parole through parole time expiration while held on detention warrants. “Absconder” includes four parolees who absconded from Home Confinement Parole and 13 who absconded from other parole. As of May 5, 1999, 10 of the 17 absconders had been returned to prison; seven were still at large. “Other” discharges include one parolee whose parole supervision date expired while still at the Rhode Island Department of Corrections awaiting discharge to Immigration authorities (table 6.5).

“Unknown or not reported” race includes 79 Hispanic probationers of unknown race (table 6.7).

Tennessee

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 450 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

“Returned to prison or jail, other” includes detainers. “Successful completion” includes 571 parolees with expired sentences (table 6.5).

Texas

All data are estimated.

“Total” entries include an unspecified number of parolees from out-of-State jurisdictions (table 6.4).

“Total” exits include and unspecified number of parolees from out-of-State jurisdictions. “Other” discharges are an adjustment needed because interstate compact cases could not be eliminated from entries and exits (table 6.5).

The 1,576 parolees in an electronic monitoring program are also included in the 3,528 parolees in an intensive supervision program (table 6.9).

Utah

“Other” discharges include 110 parolees whose sentence expired or was terminated and one parolee who was deported (table 6.5).

“Asian” includes an unspecified number of “Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander” parolees (table 6.7).

Washington

All data are estimated.

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 630 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

“Unknown or not reported” race includes parolees of mixed races (table 6.7).

Wisconsin

Total parole population on December 31, 1998 excludes an additional 264 interstate compact cases supervised for other States.

“Other” entries include mental health conditional release parolees (table 6.4).

When released on parole, they are supervised by Wisconsin’s DOC. The population also includes “sexual predators” that completed their sentence but were placed under the care of a non-DOC State agency after being declared “sexual predators” (table 6.10).

Wyoming

“Total” entries are estimated (table 6.4).

Chapter 7: Capital Punishment

Explanatory notes

The statistics reported for capital punishment may differ from data collected by other organizations. The differences occur for a variety of reasons:

- Inmates under sentence of death are originally added the National Prisoner Statistics (NPS) counts when they enter correctional facilities rather than when judges pronounce sentence.
- Following the year when prisoners are first counted, their admissions or releases as a result of court order are attributed to the year for the sentence or court order. For example, a prisoner sentenced in November 1996 entering prison custody in January 1997 would be counted as an admission in the 1997 report; the 1997 report would count him or her as being under sentence of death at yearend 1996. Similarly, a prisoner whose sentence is overturned in 1995 but who remains in the count until 1997 when the court's decision is reported would be subtracted from the 1995 and 1996 reports.
- NPS counts of persons under sentence of death are always for the last day of a calendar year and will differ from more recent counts.
- Some figures shown for yearend 1997 are revised from those reported in Correctional Populations in the United States, 1997. The revised figures include 18 inmates who either were reported late to the NPS program or were not in custody of the State correctional authorities at yearend 1997:

Alabama (1)
Arizona (1)
California (2)
Florida (1)
Illinois (2)
Kentucky (1)
Louisiana (1)
Mississippi (1)
Nevada (2)
Ohio (2)
Texas (3)
Wyoming (1).

Twenty-seven inmates had sentences to death removed in 1997 but were not reported:

Alabama (1)
Arizona (1)
Federal Bureau of Prisons (1)
Florida (4)
Georgia (7)
Louisiana (1)
Mississippi (3)

Nevada (3)
Ohio (4)
Texas (2)

- The data for 12/31/97 also include 2 inmates who were listed erroneously as being removed from death row: Connecticut (1) and Pennsylvania (1).

- Race has been changed from that previously reported for 7 inmates: 3 in Pennsylvania (from white to "other") and 1 each in Delaware, North Carolina, Texas, and Arizona (from white to black).

Chapter 8: U.S. military corrections

Explanatory notes

In 1994 the U.S. Department of Defense Corrections Council established an annual military confinement report. The council, comprising representatives from each branch of military service, adopted a standardized questionnaire with a common set of definitions. With the Corrections Council, the Bureau of Justice Statistics produced a series of tables that provide a unified profile of persons in the custody of U.S. military authorities.

The annual confinement report provides yearend counts of persons in U.S. military confinement facilities inside and outside the continental United States, by branch of service, gender, race, and Hispanic origin, conviction status and sentence length, and offense. It also provides counts of the number of persons admitted to confinement and the number released during the calendar year, by branch of service, type of commitment, and type of release. The confinement report also includes the number of facilities and their design and rated capacities, by level.

Information on Air Force confinement facilities was reported for the first time in 1997. With the full participation of all military services, the annual confinement report now provides a complete enumeration of U.S. military confinement facilities, both inside and outside the continental United States.
