WASHINGTON, D.C. 20463

August 5, 1999

MEMORANDUM

TO: The Commission
General Counsel
Staff Director
Public Information
Press Office
Public Records

FROM: Rosemary C. Smith RC
Acting Assistant General Counsel

SUBJECT: Comments on the Petition for Rulemaking Regarding Candidate Debates (11 CFR 110.13)

The Commission has received 1295 comments on the Petition for Rulemaking submitted by Mary Clare Wohlford, William T. Wohlford and Martin T. Mortimer regarding the criteria for inclusion in candidate debates. Of this, 92 were submitted by regular mail, and 1203 were submitted by electronic mail.

Copies of the comments submitted by regular mail are attached to this memorandum for your review. However, rather than distribute paper copies of the electronic mail comments, we have arranged to provide persons on this distribution list with access to the debates electronic mail database. This will enable recipients to review the comments using the Lotus Notes software on their individual workstations, and to print out any or all of those comments. To assist you with your review of the e-mail comments, we have attached a list of all the e-mail comments received, arranged alphabetically by the sender's e-mail address. We have also provided paper copies of the e-mail comments to the Press Office and the Public Records office, so that they may be made available to the media and placed on the public record.

In the near future, we will send a message containing a link to the debates database, together with instructions for adding the database to your Lotus Notes desktop. Please feel free to forward the link to other Commission staff members who are interested in reviewing the comments. If you have any questions about access to the database, contact the Help Desk.

Re: PETITION FOR AMENDMENT OF 11-C.F.R. §110.13 et seq.

Dear Ms. Smith:

The Federal Election Commission should now exercise its right to promulgate regulations regarding who may participate in Presidential and Vice Presidential Debates. The current practice of leaving it up to organizations sponsoring those debates promotes erratic and unfair practices, which are perceived by the public as precisely that.

Sponsoring Organizations of these debates may change every four years. Thus, the 'pre-existing objective criteria', that the current regulations mandate, are variable. Subjecting the criteria to these variables is unfair to both the public and the prospective debate participants.

If the Federal Election Commission sets forth specific criteria which must be met in order to participate in these debates, it would be fair to both the potential participants, and to the public who relies on these debates for guidance in making their voting decisions.

I support the specific criteria set forth in this petition as those which should be adopted by the Federal Election Commission. I would ask that you consider same in the venue that "All men are created equal" and their rights and participation should be protected, and not discriminated against by the use of some technical language.

Dear Ms. Smith,

The Association of State Green Parties would like to comment on the Reform Party Petition for Rulemaking regarding objective rules for participation in Presidential Debates.

There is extensive evidence that these debates are a critical part of the national presidential campaign. When three candidates participated in 1992, viewership was higher than at any other time. Candidates from parties other than the Democrats and Republicans deserve to know the rules of play when designing their campaigns. We request that the FEC grant the Reform Party petition and establish fair and objective rules for presidential debates.

Dear Ms. Smith:

I am writing to comment on potential changes to the current Federal Election Commission (FEC) regulations regarding presidential and vice presidential debates.

It is my understanding that the current regulation allows the sponsoring organization to decide who will be permitted to be included in the debates, according to that organization's pre-existing objective criteria. As the sponsoring organization may change from election to election, so may the criteria for the inclusion of candidates in the debates.

I support a regulation change which would empower the FEC alone to determine objective criteria for inclusion in presidential and vice presidential debates rather than leaving the decision to the sponsoring organization. As you know, it is the responsibility of the FEC to insure that presidential and vice presidential elections are fair and convey a sense of fairness to the American people. Debates involving candidates who are invited based on uniform, objective FEC-established criteria will achieve this goal.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. Should you have any questions about my comments, please do not hesitate to contact John Brownlee of my staff at 202-224-3789.

Most respectfully,

Max Cleland

Re: Notice Of Petition For Rulemaking:
Candidate Debates

Dear Ms. Smith:

These comments on the Federal Election Commission's Notice of Petition for Rulemaking, 64 Fed. Reg. 31159 (1999), governing the sponsorship of candidate debates are submitted on behalf of the Republican National Committee (RNC).

The RNC opposes this Petition for Rulemaking.

The Petitioner would have the Federal Election Commission (FEC), by revising its regulations, dictate the criteria for candidate selection for participation in debates sponsored by non-partisan, non-profit organizations. Currently, 11 C.F.R. 110.13 (c) requires that the sponsoring organization itself adopt "pre-established objective criteria to determine which candidates may participate in the debate." The Petitioner would have the FEC determine not only who was a federal candidate for the purposes of the Federal Election Campaign Act, but also determine who had sufficient support to possibly win an election. Although the debate regulations have received more public attention in presidential debates, they apply to all federal candidates. The FEC should not immerse itself in determining the viability of candidate success or failure.

Third party candidates have in fact participated in past presidential general election debates sponsored by the Commission on Presidential Debates based upon pre-established objective criteria as required under current FEC regulations. When third party candidates were denied the opportunity to debate it was also based upon pre-established objective criteria. There is no evidence of abuse, rather the pre-established criteria used to make these decisions has been reinforced by the election results.

In summary, the RNC respectfully submits, that current regulations requiring those non-partisan, non-profit organizations that actually stage federal candidate debates set "pre-established objective criteria" for determining candidate participation is a far better and more efficient approach than providing that regulatory authority to the FEC. Experience suggests that whenever a new issue would develop relating to FEC generated debate criteria, the Commission would either attempt to amend its regulations or refine and clarify its position through the Advisory Opinion process. In any case, it would be a lengthy and bureaucratic process. Such a change could also have a negative chilling effect on potential debate sponsors in fear of violating FEC mandated criteria.

These comments only address the narrow issue of who should establish objective criteria for candidate participation in debates sponsored by non-profit organizations, the FEC or the sponsoring organization. The RNC submits that it should be the sponsor not the Federal Election Commission and therefore, should deny this Petition for Rulemaking.

Respectfully submitted, •

Re: Notice of Availability of Petition for Rulemaking No. 1999-8
(11 CFR Part 110 - Candidate Debates)

Dear Ms. Smith:

We write as counsel for the Commission on Presidential Debates (the "CPD") to express CPD's opposition to the Petition for Amendment of 11 C.F.R. § 110.13(c) filed with the Federal Election Commission (the "FEC" or the "Commission") by certain members of the Reform Party on May 19, 1999.

CPD is an independent, private, non-profit corporation dedicated solely to the sponsorship of general election presidential and vice presidential debates and related voter education functions. CPD receives no funding from the government or any political party. CPD has sponsored presidential and vice presidential debates during the 1988, 1992 and 1996 general elections. CPD's debates have been viewed by tens of millions of Americans and have served a valuable voter-education function. As a result of its sponsorship of presidential debates over the last ten years and its ongoing planning and research, CPD is uniquely positioned to provide the Commission with insight into questions concerning the sponsorship of meaningful debates.

The Reform Party members urge the FEC to amend its rules with respect to presidential debates to dictate exact candidate selection criteria that private debate sponsors must follow.¹ That proposal is a significant departure from the current regulations, which allow a debate sponsor discretion in determining its candidate selection criteria, so long as those criteria are ¹ Presumably, if successful in persuading the FEC to dictate the very specific criteria to be used in connection with presidential debates, petitioners would next seek the promulgation of regulations dictating candidate selection criteria for all other federal elected offices.

“pre-established,” “objective,” and otherwise consistent with the requirements set forth in 11 C.F.R. § 110.13. We provide the following comments in opposition to the petition.

1. The FEC Has Considered This Issue Before

As an initial matter, it is important to note that, in recent years, the FEC already has twice considered and rejected efforts by minor parties to have the FEC dictate candidate selection criteria to private staging organizations. The current regulations were promulgated in December 1995. In explaining the newly-adopted rules, the FEC noted that it had expressly considered and rejected proposals that it dictate the precise criteria to be employed by staging organizations:

Many comments, and much public testimony, was received on whether the Commission should establish reasonable, objective, nondiscriminatory criteria to be used by staging organizations in determining who must be invited to participate in candidate debates. In the alternative, it was suggested that the Commission could allow staging organizations to use their own pre-established sets of reasonable, objective, nondiscriminatory criteria, provided that the criteria are subject to Commission review and are announced to the candidates in advance.

In response to the comments and testimony, new paragraph (c) has been added to section 110.13 to require all staging organizations to use pre-established objective criteria to determine which candidates are allowed to participate in debates. Given that the rules permit corporate funding of candidate debates, it is appropriate that staging organizations use pre-established objective criteria to avoid the real or apparent potential for a quid pro quo, and to ensure the integrity and fairness of the process. The choice of which objective criteria to use is largely left to the discretion of the staging organization.

60 Fed. Reg. 64,260, 64,262 (Dec. 14, 1995) (emphasis supplied).

Ross Perot's campaign organization, as well as the Natural Law Party, made a second attempt to deprive staging organizations of meaningful discretion in choosing candidate selection criteria in 1996, when those parties filed lawsuits in federal court and complaints with the FEC seeking to invalidate CPD's criteria on their face and as applied. The FEC unanimously dismissed those complaints, finding no reason to believe a violation of law had occurred.² In dismissing those complaints, the FEC stated:

Significantly, the debate regulations sought to give debate sponsors wide leeway in deciding what specific criteria to use. During the Commission's promulgation of §110.13, the Commission considered the staff's recommendation to specify certain ostensibly objective selection criteria in the regulations The Commission expressly rejected this approach. . . Instead, the Commission decided that the selection criteria is at the discretion of the staging organization

Statement of Reasons at 8 (emphasis supplied).³

2. The FEC Should Not Dictate What Criteria Are to Be Utilized

The FEC was correct in concluding in its prior examinations of this issue that it would be ill-advised to dictate to staging organizations the exact criteria to be utilized in candidate debates. The FEC was correct for both practical and legal reasons.

First, the approach urged by petitioners runs the risk of placing the partisan interests of minor party candidates above the interest of the electorate in hearing the leading candidates debate. The petitioners ignore the fact that a sponsor of general election debates that hopes to provide the electorate with a debate that includes the leading candidates faces a difficult task: to be inclusive enough to invite each of those candidates who genuinely qualify as a leading candidate, but no so inclusive that the candidates in whom the electorate is most interested refuse to participate. Candidates for federal office are not required to debate. As the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit has recognized in the context of litigation over the 1988 presidential debates, it is speculative at best to assume that the leading candidates would agree to share the stage with candidates enjoying only scant public support. Fulani v. Brady, 935 F.2d 1324, 1329 (D.C. Cir. 1991). The petitioners, in their zeal to advance their own decidedly partisan agenda, overlook this point entirely in proposing that the FEC require that an invitation be extended to every candidate on the ballot in enough states to achieve a theoretical

³ In their petition for rulemaking, petitioners make a series of erroneous statements and baseless charges concerning CPD, its origins, criteria, and the manner in which it has applied its criteria over the years. These same charges, and more, were made by the Perot campaign in the complaint it filed with FEC in connection with the 1996 debates. The Statement of Reasons, as noted, unanimously dismissed that complaint on the grounds that the FEC found no reason to believe a violation of law had occurred. CPD will not unduly lengthen this letter by responding, once again, to the already discredited allegations petitioners choose to repeat in their current petition. Of course, if there is any additional information the FEC wishes CPD to submit, we would be pleased to do so.

Rosemary C. Smith

electoral college majority and who spent at least $500,000 by the end of the month preceding the first post-September 1 debate.⁴

Second, even if the leading candidates chose to participate, the petitioners' proposed approach runs the risk of creating crowded debate stages in which the voices of the leading candidates (i.e., those in whom the public has the greatest interest) are drowned out by a plethora of candidates meeting the mechanical criteria petitioners propose but whom enjoy little public support. This problem is inherent in an approach that does not condition debate participation on the meaningful demonstration of significant public interest in a campaign.⁵ Petitioners would have the FEC require the inclusion of multiple candidates with extremely modest levels of public support, thereby co-opting federal law to place the partisan interests of minor candidates above the public's interest in assessing the candidates who have emerged as the leading candidates.

Third, more generally, the CPD has expended a great deal of effort over the years in studying alternative approaches to candidate selection. It is very challenging to identify the optimal criteria to utilize when trying to produce the best possible debates for the electorate. The FEC's current regulations seem to recognize that there is virtue in leaving to staging organizations the freedom to develop the objective criteria that they will utilize. This flexible approach recognizes that different sponsors may have slightly differing educational goals that may require different criteria.⁶ The current regulations also recognize that a rigid, government imposed set of "one-size-fits-all" criteria is too simplistic an approach and actually may stifle rather than enhance certain legitimate and informative debates, and also may stifle the development of creative approaches to candidate selection.

⁴ Petitioners state that their proposed rule would have resulted, in 1996, in debate invitations being extended to candidates with extremely modest levels of national support, such as John Hagelin of the Natural Law Party (who received .0012 of the general election vote in 1996) and Harry Browne of the Libertarian Party (who received .005 of the general election vote in 1996).

⁵ Although not the only measure, public opinion polls are an obvious tool that, properly used, can assist a staging organization to gauge public interest in a candidate. The petitioners would not permit the use of polling data at all. In its Statement of Reasons dismissing the Perot complaint, the FEC noted this same position and commented that such an approach "made little sense to us." Statement of Reasons at page 8, note 7.

⁶ CPD's stated educational goal has been to sponsor debates among the "leading" candidates for the Offices of President and Vice President of the United States. Another debate sponsor may well have as its goal to introduce to the electorate some defined set of candidates for those offices. While different, each is a legitimate goal, and each would require the application of different selection criteria.

Finally, the petitioners, in urging the FEC to dictate with great specificity how private actors sponsor a debate, also ignore the constitutional ramifications of the approach they urge. The only governmental interest that is sufficiently compelling to justify restrictions on the expression of participants in the political process is the prevention of corruption or the appearance of corruption. See, e.g., Citizens Against Rent Control v. Berkeley, 454 U.S. 290, 296 (1981) (limits on political activity are contrary to First Amendment unless they regulate large contributions given to secure a political quid pro quo); Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1, 14, 18 (1976). In the case arising out of the Perot '96 and Natural Law Party complaints regarding the 1996 presidential debates, the D.C. Circuit expressly noted that "if this court were to enjoin the CPD from ... choosing debate participants, there would be a substantial argument that the court would itself violate the CPD's First Amendment rights." Perot v. Federal Election Commission, 97 F.3d 553, 559 (D.C. Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 520 U.S. 1210 (1997), citing Hurley v. Irish-American Gay, Lesbian & Bisexual Group of Boston, 515 U.S. 557, 115 S.Ct. 2338 (1995). The FEC's current regulations, as applied, are seemingly carefully tailored to address the foregoing First Amendment concerns. A regulation dictating debate participants would not be so tailored and may well run afoul of the First Amendment.

For the above reasons, the CPD urges the FEC reject the petitioners' request that the FEC commence a rulemaking to revise 11 CFR § 110.13. Please do not hesitate to let us know if additional comments from CPD would be helpful at this time.

Very truly yours,

ROSS, DIXON & BELL, L.L.P.
