

Responding to survey:

- Columbia Riverkeeper
- Hanford Watch
- Heart of America Northwest
- Oregon Department of Energy
- Washington Department of Ecology
- WA Physicians for Social Responsibility
- U.S. Department of Energy
- U.S. Environmental Protection Agency

Why does your agency/ organization conduct PI?

Why does your agency/ organization conduct PI?

- To inform, educate (all respondents)

Why does your agency/ organization conduct PI?

-
- To inform, educate (all respondents)
 - To influence cleanup decisions (stakeholders)

Why does your agency/ organization conduct PI?

-
- To inform, educate (all respondents)
 - To influence cleanup decisions (stakeholders)
 - To reach sustainable decisions (regulators)

Why does your agency/ organization conduct PI?

- To inform, educate (all respondents)
- To influence cleanup decisions (stakeholders)
- To reach sustainable decisions (regulators)
- Provide open, on-going dialogue (DOE)

Why haven't we been more consistently effective?

Why haven't we been more consistently effective?

-
- Public doesn't often feel “heard” – in part because they rarely know the impact of their participation

Why haven't we been more consistently effective?

- Public doesn't often feel "heard" – in part because they rarely know the impact of their participation
- Lack of agreement on goals/objectives

Why haven't we been more consistently effective?

- Lack of timely and effective notices

Why haven't we been more consistently effective?

-
- Lack of timely and effective notices
 - Agencies relying on the public interest groups to notify/inform the public

Why haven't we been more consistently effective?

- Lack of timely and effective notices
- Agencies relying on the public interest groups to notify/inform the public
- Short comment periods for oftentimes complex and lengthy documents

Why haven't we been more consistently effective?

- Lack of timely and effective notices
- Agencies relying on the public interest groups to notify/inform the public
- Short comment periods for oftentimes complex and lengthy documents
- Lack of early collaboration