

Live the American Dream.
Choose a new home that uses less water.

If you're for water like me, then you'll want your new home to bear the WaterSense label. That means your family will use 20% less water inside and out, saving about 10,000 gallons per year. And hot water takes less time to get to the faucet, saving energy and utility costs. Even if you're not in the market for a new home, join me and thousands of our neighbors in the We're for Water campaign. Together we can stand up for water by making simple changes at home.
