

Missouri Severe Storms and Tornadoes – Denial of Appeal

On May 16, 2008, Governor Matt Blunt requested a major disaster declaration due to severe storms and tornadoes during the period of May 1-3, 2008. The Governor had requested a declaration for Individual Assistance and Public Assistance for three counties and Hazard Mitigation for all counties. On May 23, 2008, the request was denied. The Governor appealed the denial on May 29, 2008, and requested Individual Assistance and Public Assistance for three counties and Hazard Mitigation for all counties. During the period of May 8-13, 2008, and on May 29, 2008, joint Federal, State, and local Preliminary Damage Assessments (PDAs) were conducted and data was reviewed for the requested counties and are summarized below. PDAs estimate damages immediately after an event and are considered, along with several other factors, are considered in determining whether a disaster is of such severity and magnitude that effective response is beyond the capabilities of the State and the affected local governments, and that Federal assistance is necessary.¹

On June 20, 2008, the Governor's appeal for a major disaster declaration was denied based on the determination that the damage was not of such severity and magnitude as to be beyond the combined capabilities of the State, affected local governments, and voluntary agencies.²

² When a Governor's request for major disaster assistance under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act, as amended (Stafford Act) is under review, a number of primary factors are considered to determine whether assistance is warranted. These factors are outlined in FEMA's regulations (44 CFR § 206.48). The President has ultimate discretion and decision making authority to declare major disasters and emergencies under the Stafford Act (42 U.S.C. § 5170 and § 5191).

³ Degree of damage to impacted residences:

- Destroyed – total loss of structure, structure is not economically feasible to repair, or complete failure to major structural components (e.g., collapse of basement walls/foundation, walls, or roof);
- Major Damage – substantial failure to structural elements of residence (e.g., walls, floors, foundation), or damage that will take more than 30 days to repair;
- Minor Damage – home is damaged and uninhabitable, but may be made habitable in short period of time with repairs; and
- Affected – some damage to the structure and contents, but still habitable.

⁴ By law, Federal disaster assistance cannot duplicate insurance coverage (44 CFR § 206.48(b)(5)).

⁵ The presence of special populations, such as low-income, the elderly, or the unemployed may indicate a greater need for assistance (44 CFR § 206.48(b)(3)).

⁶ Ibid (44 CFR § 206.48(b)(3)).
