Gentlemen:

Made in the U.S.A. is a very important determinate to the majority of Americans when making purchasing decisions.

We strongly urge you to maintain the true meaning of this phrase that it has had for many generations. To allow the aldultertion of Made in U.S.A. with the addition of adjectives such as substantially, partially, a percentage amount etc. would only pander to those importers who believe that their market, and profits, will be greater if they are allowed to state "Ten Percent Made in U.S.A." or similar and then display the American flag to attract the purchaser's eye.

Enclosed is a flagrant example of what we allege. It says "Designed in U.S.A." above an American flag and then below the flag it says "Made in China" How misleading can you be?

Things should not change. If a product and/or its packaging says "Made in the U.S.A." that is exactly what it should mean.

Sincerely,

Steve Taylor
President
