Don't mislead consumers

Incredible as it may seem, our Federal Trade Commission is proposing that the current standards relating to the "Made in USA" label be relaxed to allow foreign goods to be labeled as U.S.-made.

This proposal is clearly intended to confuse consumers by distorting the meaning of "Made in USA," thereby eliminating patriotic buying habits, which the FTC regards as a troublesome world-trade obstacle.

If implemented, it will surely destroy whatever is left of pure American manufacturing.

The proposal is the result of foreign-influence peddling in our political institutions as evidenced by the millions of illegal campaign dollars pouring into the pockets of our corrupt commissary. It is just one more in a long list of anti-American insults delivered from an alien regime in Washington.

The obvious alternative to undermining the "Made in USA" label would be to keep the current system, which labels foreign-made goods as "Made in China" or "Made in USA" with parts made in foreign countries.

If you want "Made in USA" to mean just that, then you must write the FTC today at Made in USA Policy Comments, No. P894219, FTC, Room 159, Sixth and Pennsylvania Ave. N. W., Washington, DC 20580 and remind them that although they don't stand up for America, they are still "paid in USA."
