Dear Federal Trade Commission,

I am writing to you in regards to the proposed guidelines for "Made in USA" labels.

I cannot believe that the FTC would stoop to such low standards and not demand that labels that state "USA" made should just be that and not a mixture of different non USA made contents! Our manufacturers have always prided themselves in the products that they make and should not be made to accept such poor standards so that other countries could benefit while many productive working americans are slowly eased out of their jobs because of the cheap labor that sweatshops in other countries provide.

Made in the U.S.A products should be as it says and no added or deleted components to it. The losses would be the Americans of this country whose hard work deserves the credit for the products that are made here and not a 50 percent content standard made for products made in the United States.

Because of the greed that multinational companies have, why should citizens of this country have to lower their standards of good quality <sup>american</sup> made products!

I urge you reconsider your decisions as to the quality / standards of american made products.

If this keeps up, what will we have left to truly say is ours
for our generations.

With Deepest Regards,

Alde T. Cassidy
