Made in America

To whom:

My husband and I find it astonishing that the US is even contemplating a major change in the Made in USA label. We feel it is imperative that the label remain as is and continue to indicate the work was truly done by Americans.

Globalization has its defenders, but we must think of the jobs that are needed here in this country. Why should foreign workers benefit from false labeling? Let them manufacture goods that are excellent and we may buy them but why undercut our own USA workers with false information?
