

How to Report a Civil Liberties or Privacy Violation

Civil liberties are fundamental rights and freedoms protected by the Constitution of the United States. These freedoms, which include the right to privacy, are concentrated primarily in the Bill of Rights. Other civil liberties include free speech, assembly, press, and religion.

The Department of Defense (DoD) is committed to the protection of the civil liberties and privacy of DoD employees, members of the military, and the public, to the greatest extent possible, consistent with its operational requirements. The Defense Privacy and Civil Liberties Office (DPCLCLO) has been charged with implementing DoD's Privacy and Civil Liberties programs through advice, monitoring, official reporting, and training. The information contained on this page serves to assist individuals who allege that the DoD violated their civil liberties or privacy rights.

Steps for Submitting Your Complaint Letter

To report a civil liberties or privacy violation to DPCLCLO, please mail (no email, fax, or phone complaints) your complaint letter to:

Defense Privacy and Civil Liberties Office
1901 S. Bell Street, Suite 920
Arlington, VA 22202-4512

Your letter will help DPCLCLO determine if your complaint raises a civil liberties or privacy concern. Your letter also will help DPCLCLO decide whether your complaint can be referred to a DoD component office for investigation. - Understand that all investigations of civil liberties and privacy complaints are conducted by DoD component offices, not DPCLCLO

What Happens After You Submit Your Complaint Letter?

- DPCLCLO will mail you a letter acknowledging that it received your complaint letter
- DPCLCLO will review your complaint letter to make an initial determination if your letter raises civil liberties or privacy concerns
- After thoroughly reviewing your complaint letter, DPCLCLO will notify you by mail of any action taken with regard to your letter:
