OCC NAMES WESTERN DISTRICT DEPUTY COMPTROLLER

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) today announced the selection of Delora Ng Jee as Deputy Comptroller of the agency's Western District, headquartered in San Francisco, Ca. Ms. Jee will report to Senior Deputy Comptroller for Bank Supervision Operations Stephen R. Steinbrink in Washington, DC.

Ms. Jee, who is currently the OCC examiner-in-charge at Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A., in New York City, assumes her new post on Monday, February 13, 1995. She succeeds Deputy Comptroller Robert R. Klinzing, who relocated to the OCC's Midwestern District last month.

The OCC's Western District is responsible for supervising and examining national banks in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, California, Alaska, Hawaii and Guam.

Ms. Jee joined the OCC in 1978 as a field examiner based in Dallas. Since then, she has held numerous bank supervision positions with the OCC, including field examiner in London, England, manager of supervisory analysis in the agency's Multinational Banking Division in Washington, and examiner-in-charge of the OCC's London office, which supervises branches of U.S. national banks located in Europe. She is also a voting member of the Interagency Country Exposure Review Committee (ICERC).

Ms. Jee holds a B.A. in managerial studies and economics from Rice University in Houston.
