COMMISSION ANNOUNCEMENTS

SECURITIES INDUSTRY MOBILIZES FOR YEAR 2000 TRANSITION

Leaders of the securities industry's major regulatory organizations and trade associations joined together to assure investors that Wall Street will be ready for the Year 2000. Heads of the President's Council on Year 2000 Conversion, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD), the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE), the Investment Company Institute (ICI), and the Securities Industry Association (SIA) today outlined the extensive steps Wall Street has taken to prepare the industry's computer systems.

"The financial services industry was one of the first to develop a thorough Y2K testing program. These efforts have served as a model for other industries both here and abroad," said John Koskinen, chair of the President's Council on Year 2000.

"The financial services industry has a strong commitment to protecting investors' interests and maintaining the integrity of the markets," said SEC Chairman Arthur Levitt. "I am confident that the goal of 'business as usual' on January 3 will be realized."

"Hundreds of employees of the New York Stock Exchange and its technological partner, the Securities Industry Automation Corporation, have worked diligently, from both an operational and regulatory perspective, to provide investors and issuers with reliable access to the market during the transition," said NYSE Chairman and CEO Richard A. Grasso. "They will be working throughout the weekend to make sure that the NYSE is fully operational on January 3."

"Preparation for Year 2000 has been a top priority for the Nasdaq Stock Market, the American Stock Exchange, and NASD Regulation throughout 1999 and before," said Frank G. Zarb, NASD chairman and CEO. "Our efforts have focused not only on fixing our systems, but also on assisting our member-firms in getting ready. I am confident that the integrity of our markets will be preserved."

"Preparing for the Year 2000 has been an extremely high priority for the mutual fund industry for several years," said Matthew P. Fink, president of the ICI. "The results of the mutual fund industry's participation in street-wide testing of clearance and settlement systems indicate that the industry is well-prepared."

"Preparation for the Year 2000 has been the largest technology project undertaken by the securities industry," said Marc E. Lackritz, president of the SIA. "Thanks to the efforts of thousands of industry professionals who volunteered their time, we successfully tested Wall Street's systems earlier this year. We are now planning for any unforeseen incidents that may occur, and will have the resources in place over the weekend to ensure that we can respond immediately to them."

Industry preparations began more than three years ago, costing approximately $5 billion. The industrywide testing project alone involved the work of hundreds of industry professionals who volunteered their time. After a successful beta test, the full test, conducted in March and April and involving more than 400 securities firms, stock markets and utilities, resulted in virtually all of the simulated trades being processed free of "Y2K bugs."

As part of their efforts to educate investors, the President's Council, SEC, NASD, ICI and SIA developed a "Year 2000 Investor Kit." The kit will help investors prepare for the Year 2000 and includes tips such as:

- Keep good records (an idea that makes sense at any time);
- Stay informed about what their financial service providers are doing to become Y2K-ready;
- Obtain any Year 2000 literature provided by their broker/dealers, mutual funds, investment advisers or public companies in which they hold stock;
- Invest for the long term and avoid changing their trading habits;
- Not worry about obtaining stock certificates; and,
- Check the Y2K readiness of their personal computers.

The kit also features a concise review of the industry's efforts to prevent Y2K computer problems; a list of frequently asked questions for investors; a Year 2000 checklist; and information on how to check personal computers and fax machines for potential Y2K problems.

The public can access the "Year 2000 Investor Kit" through the NASD Web site: http://www.nasdr.com/3600_inv_kit.htm. Printed copies are available by calling 1-888-227-1330 or sending an e-mail to y2k@nasd.com. The kits have also been provided to securities firms for distribution to their clients.

Investors can check on the Y2K preparedness of broker-dealers, mutual funds, and investment advisers on the SEC Web site at: <http://www.sec.gov/news/y2k/y2krep.htm>. (Press Rel. 99-176)

ENFORCEMENT PROCEEDINGS

PROCEEDING INVOLVING JOHN KAHAL REMANDED TO NASD

The Commission remanded a proceeding involving John Kahal to the NASD at the Association's request. In August 1999, the NASD had found that Kahal was subject to a statutory disqualification because he had pleaded guilty in California state court to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and controlled substances. Because Kahal had two prior convictions for driving under the influence, Kahal's third conviction was a felony under California state law. The NASD therefore determined that Kahal should not be permitted to associate with a member firm.

In December 1999, the California state court reduced Kahal's conviction to a misdemeanor. As a result, Kahal was no longer subject to a statutory disqualification under the Exchange Act. The Commission therefore granted the NASD's request that this proceeding be remanded to it for dismissal. (Rel. 34-42265; File No. 3-9973)
