Alliance for a Healthier Generation

Founded by American Heart Association

Alliance for a Healthier Generation

Parent Organization Name		Alliance for a Healthier Generation (William J. Clinton Foundation)
Parent Headquarters Location		Little Rock, Arkansas
Parent Organization Mission		The Alliance for a Healthier Generation works to address one of the nation's leading public health threats—childhood obesity. The goal of the Alliance is to reduce the prevalence of childhood obesity by 2015, and to empower kids nationwide to make healthy lifestyle choices. Founded in 2005 by the American Heart Association and William J. Clinton Foundation, the Alliance works to positively affect the places that can make a difference in a child's health: homes, schools, doctor's offices, and communities.
AmeriCorps Program Year of Establishment		2010-11 AmeriCorps National Planning Grantee
AmeriCorps Grant Type		National Direct (Planning Grantee)
AmeriCorps Program Focus/Mission		The Alliance believes that kids themselves play key roles in developing solutions to the obesity problem. Kids have a stake in making a difference, as their futures will be affected by the epidemic. They offer valuable insights and perspectives. The Alliance established a "by kids for kids" movement (Kids' Movement), called empowerME, to inspire kids ages 8-17 to make healthy behavior choices and to become leaders and advocates for healthy eating and physical activity.
Primary AmeriCorps Program Activities		Our goal is to place a full-time AmeriCorps member within 15 urban and rural communities across the country with the greatest need and readiness to scale up empowerME. The Alliance plans to deepen our capacity to provide empowerME resources as a complement to the work of established community collaborators and volunteers fighting childhood obesity in these 15 communities.

AmeriCorps Program Model (check one)		National (members at local organizations directly controlled by parent)

Examples of Effective Partnerships	At Carson-Newman College, Bonner AmeriCorps members are using digital photography to encourage youth to see alternative futures for themselves. Bonner AmeriCorps members worked with an AmeriCorps to launch a small after-school program at a local community housing project two days a week. From a handful of children the center has grown to a bustling program that operates four days a week and serves as many as twenty-five children a day. As part of that program, a Bonner AmeriCorps member conceived the 'What Does Community Mean to You' photography project. The member wanted to encourage the youth to see the community of friends and family who live in public housing in Jefferson City as a source of pride and celebration, so he challenged the children to think about what 'community' means to them and then tasked them with documenting their community on film. Eight children participated in the project. Their photographs were displayed on the Carson-Newman campus, where children were invited to talk about their project, which was the first introduction to a college campus for many of the children. 2) At Lynchburg College, Bonner AmeriCorps members are serving at an urban farm and greenhouse complex called Lynchburg Grows. At Lynchburg Grows, Bonner AmeriCorps members work side-by-side with at-risk youth and individuals with physical and intellectual disabilities to provide organic, locally-grown food to people who otherwise would not have access to it. AmeriCorps Program Focus/Mission	AmeriCorps members become innovators, working with students who have become disenfranchised in our communities by removing barriers to school success and decreasing the dropout rate in Arizona. The center point of the multi-site collaborative is improving the academic success of public school children through a holistic, integrated, multi-level design approach targeting the Communities In Schools Five Basics: a one-on-one relationship with a caring adult, a healthy start and a healthy future, a safe place to learn and grow, a marketable skill to use upon graduation, and a chance to give back to peers and the community. With an evidence-based model of success, we have the ability to keep kids in school and address the social, emotional and family stability issues causing the dropout crisis.

Parent Headquarters Location	Washington, DC
Parent Organization Mission	To create a just society by mobilizing the next generation of lawyers committed to equal justice.
AmeriCorps Program Year of Establishment
AmeriCorps Grant Type	National Direct

In some cases – as with child abuse or domestic violence – legal representation can even mean the difference between life and death.
Primary AmeriCorps Program Activities	Equal Justice Works AmeriCorps increases access to justice in three fundamental ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Fellows and volunteers provide legal services to clients on an immediate basis; • Fellows and Summer Corps members help legal service organizations expand services and build long-term capacity; and • The program instills a lifelong commitment to volunteerism among law students and private attorneys. Equal Justice Works AmeriCorps members work to narrow the justice gap in many areas, including health care, public benefits, affordable housing, foreclosure defense, Veterans' rights, lost wages, protection orders and education.

Jesuit Volunteer Corps Northwest

Parent Organization Name	Jesuit Volunteer Corps Northwest
Parent Headquarters Location	Portland, OR
Parent Organization Mission	Jesuit Volunteer Corps (JVC) Northwest is dedicated to serving the most vulnerable in remote, rural and urban settings across five Northwestern states. Our organization strives to live out four key values for the sake of a more humane, sustainable world: Community, Simple Living, Social Justice and Spirituality/Reflection. COMMUNITY: Jesuit Volunteers (JVs) live with one another in a community setting. The process of building community offers an opportunity to share experience, faith and hope. Women and men come to JVC Northwest with diverse backgrounds and expectations. The challenge for each person is to respect and learn from these differences while building on common values. Community requires time, effort and sacrifice, while giving back many wonderful, unexpected gifts. SIMPLE LIVING: JVC Northwest challenges each volunteer to live a simple and reflective lifestyle, an alternative way to living in a consumer society. JVC Northwest invites volunteers to integrate their faith by working and living among those who experience poverty and oppression. SOCIAL JUSTICE: JVC Northwest is committed to working for social and ecological justice and structural change- JVC Northwest encourages and nurtures the empowerment of people who live on the margins of society by supporting programs allowing people to help themselves. Through work and reflection on lived experiences, JVs examine the causes of oppression and look for ways to bring about justice in our world. SPIRITUALITY/REFLECTION: Another aspect of the JVC Northwest year is the opportunity for the volunteers to explore and deepen their spiritual lives. Their journey is part of a life-long process that can be simultaneously comforting and unsettling, joyous and painful.

Examples of Effective Partnerships		A partnering site agreement along with a partnering site fee/contribution structure helps to create effective collaboration between the organization and local sites. This is the most fundamental component of NDMVA as it engages the community and NDMVA members equally in a partnership dedicated to the NDMVA mission. These partnerships are essential for empowering community members, creating self-sufficient individuals, and maintaining a bond between NDMVA members and the areas they serve. For example, NDMVA partners with the Caroline Center in Baltimore, MD, an education center that utilizes NDMVA members to help teach underemployed and unemployed women in Baltimore City acquire their nursing degrees. The Caroline Center is dedicated to providing employment readiness services, skills training, career support services, and GED tutoring and aligns with the NDMVA mission of self sufficiency through education.

FoodCorps
 An AmeriCorps School Garden
 & Farm to School Service Program

Parent Organization Name	Occidental College
Parent Headquarters Location	Los Angeles, CA
Parent Organization Mission	The mission of Occidental College is to provide a gifted and diverse group of students with a total educational experience of the highest quality—one that prepares them for leadership in an increasingly complex, interdependent and pluralistic world. The distinctive interdisciplinary and multicultural focus of the College’s academic program seeks to foster both the fulfillment of individual aspirations and a deeply rooted commitment to the public good. A project of Occidental College, the National Farm to School Network increases access to local food and nutrition education to improve children's health, strengthen family farms, and cultivate vibrant communities.
AmeriCorps Program Year of Establishment	2010 Planning Grant
AmeriCorps Grant Type	National Direct
AmeriCorps Program Focus/Mission	FoodCorps is a new national service program that will apply the tested AmeriCorps service model to the pressing problems of healthy food access, childhood obesity, and diet-related disease.
Primary AmeriCorps Program Activities	Once launched, FoodCorps will recruit interested young adults for a yearlong term of public service in the school food systems of high obesity, limited-access rural and urban communities around the country. Service members will build and tend school gardens, conduct nutrition education, and facilitate Farm to School relationships that bring fresh produce into the lunchrooms of “food desert” communities. The program will at once serve families of need, improving access to fresh, healthy, affordable school meals—while also serving its service members, training a cadre of young leaders for careers in food and agriculture. The launch of this innovative national program couldn’t be more timely. FoodCorps provides a scalable response to the high-priority problem of healthy-food access, responding directly to measures called for by the White House Task Force on Childhood Obesity, the CDC, and the USDA. While FoodCorps offers a large-scale solution to a deepening national problem, it will not impose a top-down “one size fits all” approach to these issues, but instead will serve to build the capacity and connect the efforts of the web of grassroots organizations and advocates already doing this work on the ground.

AmeriCorps Program Model (check one)	Intermediary (members at unrelated organizations)
Role of Parent in Administration of Program	Occidental College is incubating and developing FoodCorps as part of the college’s National Farm to School Network.

	NFSN works to improve student health by reducing childhood obesity, supports community-based food systems, and strengthens family farms. The Network is a collaborative effort of the Urban & Environmental Policy Institute, Occidental College, and the Community Food Security Coalition (CFSC). Eight regional lead agencies and national staff provide free training and technical assistance, information services, networking, and support for policy, media, and marketing activities. This web of support and wealth of resources will be critical in ensuring FoodCorps' success on the ground.

In six months, the five-person planning team has built a 2,000-person mailing list, held a series of open conference calls that each attracted 45-95 participants, garnered press including from the Washington Post and The Oregonian, convened a 60-person Planning Summit with key stakeholders, and launched a series of Work Groups that now have more than 300 active members. FoodCorps is committed to carrying this inclusive spirit forward, emerging as a focused program with a strong national identity, but always engaging stakeholders from across the existing community of food reformers.
