Aging in Place

In the past, if a person had trouble living alone, it was a sign it was time to move in with family or go to a nursing home. Today, for most people, this is no longer the case. Now you can live on your own, for many years, in your home of choice. As you grow older and require help with everyday tasks, the support comes to you. This is called Aging in Place.

This approach can greatly extend your stay in your own comfortable living space. Should you develop a chronic health condition like diabetes, arthritis, or a similar medical disorder, a range of paid services may be obtained to support you. In fact, you may even opt for special equipment or hire in-home caregivers to ensure your independence.

Thrive with a Personal Plan of Care

First, we will complete an individual Vitality Plan so we can clearly understand your unique abilities and needs. Then, AFRH will create your very own personal Plan of Care to identify services that will promote and extend your independence. We'll update your Plan regularly, noting changes to your needs and any extra support that may be required. Ultimately, this Plan of Care will be the blue-print to help us deliver personal assistance to you in Independent Living Plus.

Count on Your Dedicated Support Team

A highly specialized Team will direct your assistance in Independent Living Plus. This Resident Support Team is comprised of top Home Health Professionals – Including a Supervisory Nurse, Aides, Social Workers, and more. Together, they'll help coordinate all aspects of your daily life – from medical, spiritual, and rehabilitation to nutrition, mobility, and social services.
